The present depression is gradually passing, and its passing can be hastened if everyone to whom Almighty God has been kind will display just a little of brotherly love and charity.

When we depart this life the only thing we take away with us is the record of good deeds performed by us while here. The need of our fellow man at the present hour presents an opportunity that we may not be permitted to indulge in the future. Let all who can take advantage of the privilege here presented.—JAMES M. Hopes and Fears
Zionism Protests
A Really Fast Plane
The Salmon Industry

By Arthur Brisbane

The farmer hopes so.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, formerly president of the German Reichsbank, predicts a halt in reparations payments by Germany.

Britain hopes that the United States will "have a heart" and voluntarily reduce the already reduced payment of the British debt.

Our foreign friends will admit that when another war starts, Uncle Sam will be justified in moving slowly towards fresh foreign loans, even if we are told that Germany, or Mesopotamia, may come over and eat us alive.

Zionists, intent on rebuilding the Jewish homeland in Palestine, attack savagely recent utterances and decisions of the British government, which has the Palestine mandate.

Britain proposes to stop, or greatly decrease, Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Jewish organizations accuse the British of putting the welfare of Arabs, who have been in Palestine for 700 years, ahead of Zionist welfare.

The British do not mention it, but they have more than 100,000,000 Mohammedans in the empire, and, at most, three or four million Jews. They do not want to annoy the Mohammedans by irritating Arabs, who are also Mohammedans.

Inspiring news from Germany, where, at this moment, they are building a plane intended to fly 35,000 feet above the earth, at 500 to 800 miles an hour, to make the trip from Berlin to New York in six hours. That will come in time, although this machine may have its troubles.

The plane, with a "fish-like" body, will draw in its wheels and other landing gear. Oxygen will be fed to the engine, passengers will travel in an airtight compartment, manufacturing their atmosphere as they go along.

We may have our slumps and industrial stoppages, but science doesn't stop.

The entire salmon industry, important to the people and the prosperity of the United States, meets in Seattle today to discuss its problems, including overproduction and reckless price cutting by weaker producers.

To advise spending money in these days seems cruelty, but the salmon industry will solve its problems by aggressive and intelligent advertising, and not otherwise.

Make the people realize the value of salmon as a food, its quality as distributed by the northwestern packers, its extraordinary cheapness in proportion to food value and the biggest run of salmon would not be enough to supply the demand.

Does advertising pay even in a "depression?" asked George Washington Hill, running the business of his late father, Percival S. Hill.

He sells cigarettes and ADVERTISES them.

In September the cigarette business generally fell off, according to the Wall Street Journal, for all manufacturers, by 160,513,333 as compared with September, 1929.

But G. W. Hill's sales increased by 655,429,000 as compared with September, 1929.

Get something the people want, and let them know you have it by advertising it. There is no other way.

Yesterday in the far away Nicaraguan Island of the South Pacific, scientists with huge cameras and other scientific instruments studied the sun's eclipse.

It lasted only 93 seconds, then the sun came out again and resumed its shining.

Some find it hard to believe that prosperity's eclipse which has lasted more than 93 seconds will also surely pass, and prosperity come out again and resume its shining.

Many feel about prosperity's eclipse as primitive men felt

Speedy Response to Plea for Jobs

Quick Result in American Plea For Jobless

(Have you an odd job to be done? Call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8607, or mail the attached coupon.)

Odd jobs are bringing quick relief from the misery of hunger and cold to many Greater Boston men and women.

The appeal of the Boston Evening American for work—not charity—is bringing an immediate response from the public.

Business at the Municipal Employment Bureau was gratifyingly brisk today. Eighteen jobs were waiting for the right men or women—the neediest and most deserving—when the bureau swung into action. Business continued brisk all day.

A man in Mattapan telephoned in a request for a painter to do odd jobs for two or three days.

A minute later a Dorchester resident asked for a painter for two weeks' work on two houses.

All the men qualified for this work were singled out, and the neediest among them were sent to fill the jobs.

A woman living in Agoun ave., Medford, asked for a mother's helper. She said what the first two had said, that she had read the appeal in last night's Boston Evening American and had obeyed that impulse.

This job was filled. Another mother's helper was sent in response to an application from a home in Seminary rd., Brighton, and a little later the bureau had six more similar applications.

"I can only pay $6 or $8 a week, but I have a nice warm room for the one who likes this job, and she will be well fed," said the Brighton mother.

A girl who had been vainly seeking work for weeks—she breakfasted on nothing but a cup of coffee this morning—went out to take that job. It sounded "mighty fine" to her.

A wood-cutter was asked for and supplied in Dorchester. A waitress was sent to fill a vacancy at a Back Bay club.

An automobile mechanic got steady job at a repair shop in Dorchester ave., and another man was given work making various repairs at a North Washington st. building.

PRIEST TELLS HOW HE BOUGHT CANDY STOCK

Marlboro Man Paid $13,000 for Page & Shaw Stock He Couldn't Sell Back

How he bought $13,000 worth of Page & Shaw stock and then fought for 75c dividends, was told today by Rev. J. Louis M. Levesque, pastor of the French Catholic Church at Marlboro, before the government rested in the trial of Otis E. Dunham, president of the concern, and others at Middlesex court, Cambridge.

A man he identified as Benjamin Finn, who pleaded guilty of conspiracy and larceny from the priest, was the man named "Stanton" that came to him first on Oct. 1, the priest testified.

"He told me he came to me because he knew that I wasn't a gambler," Fr. Levesque testified.

"And he said he was going to do me a special favor by letting me in on the Page & Shaw stock. I wasn't interested at first and he told me I must decide before midnight or lose my chance.

"I had met him before when I bought some stock of the Holland Far East Co. He was with the salesman of that stock and I thought he was all right.

"I bought $3000 worth then and gave him 33 shares of Mass. Utilities Associates stock and a check for $1400.

"Now, I he said the 33 shares did not bring as much as expected and I would have to pay $500 or less that amount. I gave him a check for it.

"Other salesmen came to me after that and I bought $10,000 worth more, giving them bonds of National Cement Co. of Montreal. These were good stocks that paid 7 per cent."

75 TRAPPED IN WEST END FIRE

More than 75 persons, including many women and children, fled or were carried to safety down ladders early today when flames raced through the tenement block at 12-18 North Anderson st., West End.

Several persons, blocked from escape by blinding smoke that surged through the corridors, were driven to the roof of the five-story building, from where they were carried to safety by firemen.

The fire is believed to have started in a woodbin in the cellar of 12 North Anderson st.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Manfredi and their six children were assisted from the second floor. The children are Tony, 19; Theresa, 18; Angelina, 15; Lucy, 13; Leo, 8, and George, 4.

Angelina was carrying George down the stairs when she tripped and fell, injuring herself and the child slightly.

Mrs. Leonard Penaitti, occupant of the first floor apartment in 12 North Anderson st., was the heroine of the fire. She and her husband were awakened by smoke. While the husband ran to sound an alarm, Mrs Penaitti carried out her boys, Ralph, 5, and Johnny, 4.

She then re-entered the building and ran to the upper stories, arousing several other tenants and assisting them to the street.

Dist. Atty. Foley Discovers $240,000 Involved as List of Dupes Grows

Art swindles amounting to several millions of dollars were under investigation by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today.

A huge art swindle ring working through the East and Middle West for four years has been uncovered by the Boston inquiry, which already has brought to light definite transactions by which dealers, museums and collectors paid in excess of $240,000 for bogus "old masters" and antiques.

While the list of victims continued to grow, search was pressed in Boston and New York today for 13 alleged members of the swindle ring secretly indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury. Only one woman, alleged member of a ring numbering scores of swindlers, is in custody.

THIRTEEN HAVE FLED.

The other 13 indicted have fled the State, so far as police can determine.

Their clever manipulations over a period of years with china alone have netted members of the ring more than $1,000,000, according to investigators for the district attorney.

In addition there are coming to light countless instances where huge amounts have been paid by museums and collectors for bogus paintings.

Edwin E. Crowninshield of Stockbridge, millionaire china collector and cousin of Henry Dupont of Wilmington, Del., is co-operating with the authorities in search for the perpetrators of one of the most daring series of swindles ever brought to light.

DEALERS INVOLVED

Through his co-operation with Inspector Warren Lasse the art work by which comparatively valueless china was made to appear as treasured heirlooms has been traced to two New York decorating concerns which, above suspicion themselves, acted on com-

CHINESE REDS BUTCHER 8000

Kiuklang, China, Oct. 22 (AP)—Bishop Mignisni of the Italian Lazarist mission at Kiun, Kiangsi province, one of 16 missionaries abducted when Communist outlaws ransacked the central Kiangsi city, said here today 8000 residents of Kian had been slaughtered by the invaders.

Bishop Mignisni said Communist forces captured the city October 6 and the slaughter followed. Since then, he said, intermittent killing had continued. The city was burned and looted.

The bishop and one Chinese priest of the Lazarist mission were released to come here and seek to raise $10,000,000 Mexican as ransom money for the 14 prisoners.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Stocks dipped into new low ground today, but recovered when the selling wave lost its strength. United States Steel common rejected $2.25 (a the new low of $43.25 and then rallied. Radio, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and Standard Oil of New Jersey were other prominent shares to penetrate their previous 1930 minimums. American Can and Woolworth showed net gains of about $2 in the afternoon.

POLICE HUNT 13 MEMBERS OF RING

The investigation has involved as innocent or conspiring partners in certain swindles a number of Greater Boston art and antique dealers. In many cases dealers themselves have been duped and placed on display for sale fake china and paintings they believed genuine. Many of these they still have in their possession.

BROOKLINE MAN VICTIM

Latest additions to the list of victims were a wealthy Brookline resident, name withheld, who paid $28,000 for a faked Rembrandt, and a Buffalo millionaire named Hecking who paid $30,000 for a bogus portrait of Washington by Gilbert Stuart, similar to that which Edwin S. Webster, of Stone & Webster, bought from the swindle ring for $32,500.

Webster, a trustee of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, who bought hurriedly without consulting the usual authorities who advise him, received his payment back from the dealer who sold him the painting, but Hecking is said to be paid.

Hecking sent word to Boston that he is coming here within a day or two to confer with the district attorney in an effort to link his purchase with the alleged swindling of Mrs. Clementina Briggs Doran, of Holyoke, and Mrs. Caroline B. S. Saunders and William James Cooke, of New York.

HEIRLOOM RACKET

Mrs. Briggs was held in $20,000 bail on charges of larceny and conspiracy from Clinton L. Nash, Boston collector, who paid $3,000 for faked china. Cooke, police say, went out the back door of her Holyoke home on Monday when authorities went there to arrest her. He is the husband of the former Mrs. John S. Huyler, widow of the candy manufacturer, and is alleged to have directed the activities of the trio.

Mrs. Saunders, police say, posed in "lavender and old lace" at the Copley Plaza and Ritz Carlton hotels last spring as the aged aristocrat, "hard up" and willing to dispose of the family heirlooms at reasonable prices.

MUSEUMS TRICKED

How many dealers, museums and private collectors have been victimized may never be known. Dealers who bought outright and found themselves duped will be reluctant to admit it, police pointed out, and private collectors will also hesitate to press charges.

The co-operation of the museums victimized is sought by the authorities and another coming to Boston is F. C. Finley, director of the Kansas City Museum of Fine Arts, which paid $5000 in cash and gave $25,000 in notes for a faked "old master."

Officials are seeking to determine whether faked old china for which a Marblehead antique shop paid $10,000 was the work of the same artists who "transformed" the china for which Nash paid $91,125.

Despite denial by Edward Holmes, a director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, that the famous institution had been taken in by the swindle ring, the district attorney's office admitted it was inquiring into the purchase of bogus art by the museum.

EXPERTS EXPOSE FAKE

Police say Mrs. Doran, Mrs. Saunders and Cooke arrived in Boston late last February and went to the Ritz-Carlton. Cooke, it is alleged, posed as the art dealer directing Mrs. Saunders' efforts to gains money from the family "heirlooms" and Mrs. Doran took the part of Cooke's secretary.

Nash, who bought the bogus china, was informed Mrs. Saunders hesitated to dispose of the "heirlooms" in New York for fear of criticism by her relatives. The china was represented as having been in the Van Rensselaer family since 1790.

After he had bought the china, Nash had experts recheck it and discovered its true value. Private detectives were put on the trail of the trio, the Webster purchase was disclosed, the police called in and the trail followed to New York and back to Holyoke.

ART DEALER EXPLAINS

The Boston art dealer who acted for Webster in the transaction where $32,500 passed for a copy of Stuart's right-profile portrait of George Washington explained the deal today. He is one of the most reputable in the city with international connections and has been employed by the government for inspection of paintings on several occasions.

Webster was in the market for a Stuart portrait of Washington, one of the Vaughan series, the first of which was executed for an Englishman and which so pleased the artist himself that he made at least a dozen copies of his own work.

COMPLETELY DECEIVED

A New York dealer informed the Boston dealer that a postoffice inspector, an amateur collector, had found a Stuart Washington in a South Carolina town and the Boston dealer went to New York to inspect it.

He was completely deceived and informed Webster of his belief that the painting was genuine and that at $32,500 it was a real bargain.

The most recent Stuart Washington sold had been for $110,000, but the low price in this instance was represented as based in the failure of the owner to supply the painting's history with the portrait itself.

Webster paid the price and took the painting and neither he nor the Boston dealer suspected its authenticity until a few weeks ago.

WILL BURN PICTURE

Then a Boston police official who had been detailed to the investigation of the china swindle learned of the sale to Webster, informed him of his suspicions, and another inspection of the portrait was made.

Inside the canvas stretcher, not in the usual place, the word "copy" was found.

Webster absolved the Boston dealer from any connection in the plot and was willing to pocket the loss himself, but the dealer insisted upon making it good and scraped together the necessary $32,500 last week.

The painting will be taken by the dealer tonight and he will burn it himself, he declared.

The dealer has informed police that Cooke and Mrs. Doran had called at his gallery several times, that he spotted them as impostors and that on the last occasion of his visit he ordered Cooke from his office.

What's a Nickel Good for? Reporter Can't Find Out

By SIDNEY COLBY

"I want a navy blue overcoat, single-breasted with raglan shoulders," I told the salesman in the men's clothing department of one of the largest stores.

"Right," said he, "over this way. Any special price in mind?"

"Well," I told him, "I don't want to pay more than a nickel."

"Beg pardon," he said.

"Nickel," says I. "A 5¢ piece, a five cent piece, twentieth part of a plunk."

"Oh," says he. "I understand." He doesn't bat an eye but he nods his head. "Well, now, we haven't any overcoats at that price, but would you be satisfied with a good bundle of horse feathers?"

WHAT NICKELS ARE FOR

So began an afternoon quest to discover what a nickel would buy. Aim a bit high and lead 'em a mile is the old axiom of teal shooting. But it didn't take long to get me trained down to telephone calls and bus rides.

A Boston sandwich company announced yesterday that it was retailing two healthy slices of bread with an in-between for a nickel. Visions of the five-cent days when a nickel would buy a foam-topped mug one may have inspired the inquiry to discover whether the good old days were back.

They aren't. The sandwiches are all right. I found one place where you can get a foam-topped mug for a nickel. I think it was dipped right out of the dishpan.

Somebody else had heard you could buy quits a lot of food for a nickel at lunch counters now. You can buy a lot of varieties but the quantity is on a rigid diet.

TALK IS CHEAP

One counter advertises a nice big order of spinach for five cents, but who wants a nice big order of spinach? At the same place a nickel will buy an apple fritter or an order of peas or string beans. There is advertised a combination plate of baked beans and a frankfort for the total of 15 cents, but the joker is that while you pay five cents for a dab of baked beans you pay a dime for a weary five-cent hot dog.

Of course, coffee and tea are still five cents at many places, but those restaurants that have been boosting a dime are still charging a dime.

The two repair shops I couldn't negotiate a pair of lacings for a nickel, though I wasted a dollar's worth of breath in an argument that would have done credit to a Turkish rug peddler. So the references to "starting with a shoe string" is without its old significance.

WORTH A NICKEL

I visited one heart-warming establishment where five cents will buy 36 bottle caps, or a "fool of rubber tube, or one cork stopper or 18, according to size, the big ones being for the gallon jugs. There was a little man there tasting out a spigot by blowing through it in the manner of one giving a sweet-potato to concert and he invested a quarter in bottle caps.

"Have you any 5-cent cigars," I asked the manager of a tobacco shop, thinking of Vice President Tom Marshall.

"Twelve different brands," he said. None recently joined the 5-cent group, however.

You can't buy a plug of chewing tobacco for less than 10 cents and there have not been any 5-cent packs of cigarettes for years and years and years.

There are numerous little items, household necessities and nick-nacks that can be bought for a jitney, for instance a wash cloth, writing tablet, box of rubber bands, sarcisuan bulb, roll of tape, fuse plug, cork inner-sole, coat hanger and egg cup. But they are not new additions to the 5-cent list.

One new addition to the nickel group is the Elevated bus trip from North Station to South Station. If you're not in a hurry it's well worth the money.

I had a nickel set aside for entertainment, changed it into pennies and gambled with a penny vending machine, coming out at the short end by one fruitless push on the plunger.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

SPINSTER AIDS IN TRAPPING SALESMAN

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)—Harry Miller, alias Ball, a stock salesman, was under arrest today charged with grand larceny as the result of a trap set for him by a New England spinster and baited with $100,0000.

He was arrested in the Grand Central terminal yesterday when he met Miss Mary Hotchkiss, 45 years old, of Hartford, Ct., from whom he expected to get $100,000 to invest in a stock pool.

Miss Hotchkiss told officials of the State Bureau of Securities she met Miller, who was known to her as "Mr. Ball" when he was employed by Hargrave, Stanley & Co., a brokerage firm that was enjoined from selling stock a year ago, except under conditions stipulated by the court.

She said he visited her home about two months ago and induced her to buy stock in Kearsarge Mines, Inc., and the Lee Ga Gas Corporation. She made several trips with cash to New York, she said, investing total of $111,000.

Last Monday, she said, Miller telephoned to her that she would have to put in the $100.000 to save her previous investment. She became suspicious and went to the securities bureau.

John Caleses, deputy attorney-general, arranged to have three detectives at Grand Central terminal when Miss Hotchkiss, carrying $100,000 in cash, met Miller. His arrest followed.

between Fr. Levesque and the company were introduced showing inquiries about the 75c dividends promised Dec. 17.

TRIED TO SELL STOCK

Small payments were made, the letters show, and in Feb. 30, Fr. Leveque asked the company to buy back the stock.

This was met with a letter explaining the optimistic prospects of the business and no sale was made.

The priest's testimony followed that of Mrs. Florence I. Beattie of Lowell, who told of sales talk that included the demand for Page & Shaw candy by the "sweethearts of Europe."

She identified Samuel Schwab as the man who gave the name "O'Malley" when he called on her after the introductory sale of one share and a box of candy.

Just before the Government rested, Dist. Atty. Bushnell announced the nol pross of the indictment against James O'Malley, a defendant, no connection with another O'Malley Schab is alleged to have posed as.

"He told me it was the opportunity of a lifetime," Mrs. Beattie testified, "and said the business was expanding so the company wanted to give the opportunity to small stockholders."

"BROKER" CAME TOO

She testified he told her the European swains preferred the candy for their sweethearts and the business was booming accordingly.

On a second trip, she testified, Schwab had a man who introduced himself a broker, anxious to buy any of her "allotment" that she didn't buy.

When she offered the 100 shares she then held, she told the court, the broker offered willingness but Schwab objected on the grounds that he wanted her to "share in the profits."

She later bought 300 more shares, giving her backbook and an order for $600.

COULDN'T FORGET FACE

Under cross examination by Atty. Timothy Callahan, counsel for Schwab, she admitted she didn't think O'Malley was his right name, but didn't mention it because she "tried to be a lady."

Dist. Atty. Bushnell immediately asked her if she was sure it was the same man and the court rapped for order after her reply "I never could forget that face."

John A. Sandy of South Swansea, another witness today, testified that he bought $5000 worth of stock at the insistence of four salesmen, one of whom he described as Harry Blackstone, a defendant. The others are not defendants, he said.

Stenberg sold him $2000 worth and the other handled the remainder, he said.

Mrs. Maud E. Morse of Lowell also testified that Percy Powers, a defendant, sold her $200 worth on the promise of "a big plum" coming, and that three other salesmen brought her total to $5000. Under cross examination she said it was her first venture in stocks and she bought on the strength of the Page & Shaw name.

WOODS HAS PLAN TO AID JOBLESS

Washington, Oct. 22 (AP)—Arrival of Col. Arthur Woods, a native of Boston and former police commissioner of New York, to take charge of the President's national unemployment organization, was awaited today by the cabinet committee working on the initial program.

In New York Woods made known he had definite plans for his task, which he intends discussing with President Hoover before making any public announcement. Selection of personnel to serve with him is one of the first tasks expected to receive attention.

The Hoover administration is inclined to view the actual problem as one of aiding 2,500,000 unemployed. The official estimate sets the total out of work now at 3,500,000, including 1,000,000 casual unemployment, roll of 1,000,000 covering "floaters," disabled persons and other classes that do not work.

FUGITIVE BOY CAUGHT AFTER CASTLE CHASE

Lad Leads Police Through Searles Mansion, Then Is Found at Home

Lawrence, Oct. 22—A 14-year-old boy, escaped inmate of the Essex County Training School, was captured at his home today after he had led police a chase through halls and the turrets of the late Edward F. Searles' castle at Methuen.

He was charged with delinquency, breaking and entering, larceny and assault with a dangerous weapon. Police said he admitted two breaks and the theft of an auto. The thefts included firearms.

He was sighted today on the Searles estate by Patrolman James O'Gorman of Methuen. With a derisive laugh he fled into the maze of the castle's interior, dropping a sawed off shotgun in his flight.

O'Gorman failed to find him.

The boy made his appearance at the Searles estate yesterday, encountering a group of boys playing there.

"I'll give you three minutes and if you haven't scattered by then I'll let you have it," he warned the boys.

When they failed to heed the warning he leveled the gun and fired.

Arthur Lavelly, 14, of 86 Stearns ave., one of the group, dropped with a bullet through his right thigh.

The boy escaped from the school several weeks ago.

In view of the boy's age and out of deference to his parents, the Boston Evening American withholds his name.

Jordan's attorney, in urging the minimum five years' sentence, told the court his client "was just a punch-drunk fighter who was used as a tool," in the holdup. Jordan's partner in the holdup never was apprehended.

British Tennis Star Will Wed Soldier

London, Eng., Oct. 22—Miss Joan Fry, British international tennis champion, has advanced the date of her coming marriage to Ashley Lakeman, a lieutenant in the Royal Tank Corps, she announced today. CITY'S LEADERS PRAISE AMERICAN'S DRIVE TO AID UNEMPLOYED

MAYOR SENDS THANKS OF CITIZENS

Urges All to Cooperate in Providing Jobs and Relieving Distress of Needy

Mayor Curley and other Boston men and women, leaders in public life and business—some of them ardent workers for the unemployed—today praised the campaign of the Boston Evening American to find part time work for the needy.

The Boston Evening American appeals to employers, property owners and all others who have odd jobs to be done—repairing, painting, walks to patch, leaves to be raked, cellars to be cleaned up, sewing, cooking and other domestic work—to serve themselves and the unemployed by hiring men and women for this work from the Municipal Employment Bureau.

MAYOR'S LETTER

Following is Mayor Curley's letter, heartily endorsing the appeal:

"Editor of the Boston American:

"I hope you will accept the sincere appreciation of the entire citizenship of Boston for the contribution made by the Boston Evening American to those seeking work.

"The Municipal Employment Bureau was established by me in 1922, and has served a most necessary and useful purpose during its existence. It makes possible contact between the individual requiring workers and the seeker of a job.

"Unfortunately, under the revised charter of 1909, municipal departments are prohibited from advertising in the daily papers, and as a consequence the work of the Municipal Bureau is largely a matter of circularizing and personal solicitation.

PUBLICITY BIG AID

"The publicity given the Bureau this day by the Boston Evening American should result in many and better contacts between those seeking workers and the workers seeking the job.

"If every owner of property in a position to undertake a reasonable expenditure for the improvement of his property, such as painting, plumbing, plastering, masonry, or other work, would do so, employment would be possible for a large number of persons.

"Unfortunately, the average individual labors under the impression that a day or a week's work is not of great value, but to the head of a household where the chief guests, outside of the wife and children, are hunger and cold and unfed hearts, it means everything.

DEPRESSION PASSING

"The present depression is gradually passing, and its passing can be hastened if everyone to whom Almighty God has been kind will display just a little of brotherly love and charity.

"I am sufficiently optimistic to believe that the lesson of the past year will compel the development and adoption of a program that will prevent a recurrence in the future.

"When we depart this life the only thing we take away with us is the record of good deeds performed by us while here.

"The need of our fellow man at the present hour presents an opportunity that we may not be permitted to indulge in the future. Let all who can take advantage of the privilege here presented."

CLUBWOMEN PRAISE PLAN

Prominent clubwomen and civic leaders of Boston praised the plan.

"I think it is splendid of the Boston Evening American to come to the aid of the needy at this time," commented Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, granddaughter of James Russell Lowell and champion of the woman worker for years.

"I heartily endorse the prompt action taken by your newspaper, for I believe that the more this situation is agitated the more it stimulates thought for planning how available work may be divided to give more persons employment."

Mrs. Rantoul is chairman of the committee on women in industry in the Massachusetts Civic League and active in the Women's Trade Union League.

"It seems to me that the American is pointing the way for all public agencies to help in this distressing situation," Mrs. Rantoul added.

SERVICE TO COMMUNITY

Mrs. Trua Worthy White, secretary for political education, Massachusetts League of Women Voters, said:

"I am glad that the Boston Evening American is using its pages to call attention to the opportunity to help the unemployed. I am glad that attention is being called to the Municipal Employment Bureau, which can be of great help to both employers and those seeking work. I will be very glad to help where I can in this matter."

Mrs. Arthur Rotch, vice-president of the Boston League of Women Voters, said:

"The idea announced by the Boston Evening American will help the immediate situation of the unemployed and will also be of service to the community in letting the people know that now and in the future they can aid their fellow men and women through the agency of the Municipal Employment Bureau."

$32,500 Fake Stuart Portrait Will Go Up in Smoke

Literally "up in smoke" tonight will go the bogus Stuart portrait of George Washington for which Edwin S. Webster, Boston millionaire, paid $32,500, and thought he was getting a bargain.

"This is one copy that never again will fool anybody," he said.

LIQUOR LADEN BOAT SEIZED

New London, Conn., Oct. 22 (AP)—The liquor laden fishing boat, Liberty and the speed boat Desires were seized today by coast guardsmen, the former in the Atlantic near Montauk Point and the latter in Block Island Sound.

Loaded with an estimated cargo of 600 sacks of assorted liquor, the Liberty was captured by the Patrol Boat CG-238 and her crew of four held.

Warning shots fired by vessels in a rocket line at Cerberus Shoal halted the Desiree, running without lights. Two men aboard were released after a search had disclosed no liquor.

The vessels were brought to the Coast Guard base here and charged with violations of the navigation laws.

'Baering' Down On the News

WITH

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

We sound our annual government warning against the stuff now being sold as holiday liquor.

Some years ago we wrote the rye would tip your hat with both hands in your pockets. Accept no substitutes.

The Bourbon is much better. They spray trees with it in the summer. None genuine without an inquest.

Scotch is the best. One drink will turn your skin into a pie crust. Two drinks will simonize you. Money back if not ossified.

There was an eclipse of the sun yesterday on Tin Can Island in the Polynesian Archipelago. It only lasted 93 seconds. They must have left out the juniper berries.

Take the dew from the poison ivy, the tears of a wildcat and condense the moisture on a shark's rosy cheeks. Shake them up well and take a sip. We will guarantee that you will swish through the skies like a comet with two tails.

Even the owners of speakessies are afraid of the stuff. They don't slug patrons anymore. The last time a bartender kicked a customer the man exploded.

This is the last official warning. Paste this on your windshield and read it as you are driving through.

MAYOR OK'S BIG WIDENING JOB

Mayor Curley today approved the order for the widening of Charles st., from Embankment rd. to Longfellow bridge, at an estimated cost of $1,200,000.

The work will be kept up through the winter as much as the weather will allow, he said, for the benefit of the unemployed. The roadway will be widened to 120 feet.

The mayor also approved the award $100,000 to J. J. Newbury Co. Stores, Central sq., East Boston, for taking of their property, bounded by Central sq., London and Meridian sts, for the new tunnel.

The land is assessed for $60,000. It was the first time he has deviated from his announced policy of settlements at 10 per cent over the assessed valuation.

He also awarded contracts for 300,000 gallons of gasoline for the city hospital, fire and health departments. Pennsylvania Oil Co. and Atlas Petroleum Co., tied bidders at 7½ cents below the tank wagon price during the year, split the contract.

Apology Demanded of Lynn Doctor for Dumbell Remark

In a protest to Mayor Fred L. Manning, the Patriotic Education League of Lynn today scored a remark credited to Dr. William G. Ward, school committeeman, that "any dumbbell can teach Americanization."

They quote Dr. Ward's statement from a discussion in the school committee hearing on the replacement of six veteran lecturers of the naturalization classes in the city.

A formal and public apology is demanded by the League, and in their protest they urge that Mayor Manning hold up the proposed appointment of new teachers.

Judge McDonnell's Case Goes to Parker

The advance class in tagging had their names submitted today to Motor Vehicle Registrar George A. Parker for whatever may be in his thoughts. Leading all the rest of fourth offenders in a jagged way since September 3, when the new tags were born, was the name of Judge William H. McDonnell of South Boston and the Charlestown Court.

The names were sent to the registrar by the police bureau of traffic.

BEER SMUGGLED IN AS "PULP"

St. Albans, Vt., Oct. 22—It was a nice plan while it lasted, but hijackers got wind of it even before customs men—and now beer isn't being sent over the line as pulpwood.

It was revealed today that an American syndicate has been running hundreds of cases of Canadian beer into the United States by consigning freight carloads as pulpwood.

All went well until too hard a bump in making over the freight in the local yard broke some of the bottles and a car leaked. Thirsty railroad men helped themselves.

When the next "pulpwood" freight came over, 400 cases of beer was hustled off by hijackers, and the customs men heard about it.

Women Join With Men in Giving Needy Jobs

hotel, came this message:

"I read that story in the Boston Evening American and it's a great idea. I want a neat young man to ride around with me in my car every evening to guide me to various suburbs. I have calls to make and don't know the streets.

"I was trying to get along without a guide but I can very well hire one, and it means work for about a month for the right man."

The man who got this job has something good to tell the folks at home.

"This is the finest, most practical thing to help the unemployed that yet has happened," said Director Shields of the Employment Bureau. "I am overjoyed that the mayor is getting this assistance.

"It's the people who have odd jobs to be done, part time work, that are going to give employment and relief to these men and women who are 'up against it.' It is going to relieve the situation.

"Why, I can show you a score or more in that crowd out there who haven't had a thing to eat this morning. But look at them. They have hope now. You should have seen them yesterday morning and on all those other days.

"We can guarantee to send somebody to fill any kind of a job. All the people have to do is to call us up. And to those people who have odd jobs to be done, I say, 'Don't do it yourself, and don't neglect it. Hire a man or woman to do it. The one you employ may not have eaten regularly for a long time, and a short space of work will be a God-send."

And if television could have shown to the people of Boston the surging crowd of several hundred that stormed the bureau's offices during the day, a crowd of men and women long out of work, they would have had their thanks in full realization of the great good they were doing.

The chance of part-time work put that light of hope in their eyes.

Some painting job that has been neglected, some repair work in building, office or home, cellars to be straightened up, leaves to be raked, heaters to be cleaned for the winter, fires to be tended—these are some of the jobs you may have for them.

A few dollars look mighty big to the jobless. It is practical help, a good bargain for both parties, to get that work done.

How many odd jobs there are to be done in all Greater Boston!

Most of these would be done if people realized the value to those in distress of a little work, a little money.

And if they realized what it means to be out of work day in, day out, with families to feed, clothe and shelter!

And so, if you have some little work, just call Liberty 8607 and tell Mayor Curley's Municipal Employment Bureau about it.

Or, if you prefer, clip the attached coupon and mail it to the bureau at 25 Church st.

RUTHERFURD IS SUED BY WIFE

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, Oct. 22—As far back as 1926 I gave out the first editorial intimation that the famed romance of the John M. L. Rutherfurds had struck a snag.

And since that time "Jack" and "Flo" have parted and been reunited innumerable times.

Now, according to advices from Palm Beach, everything is definitely "off" with "Flo" asking for an absolute divorce from the patrician Mrs. Walter Rutherfurd's son.

Yesterday in the circuit court, at the Florida Spa where she has passed so many winters, "Flo" filed a bill against young Rutherfurd containing sensational charges. Among other things the younger of the Edward Crozers' daughters claims her husband "continuously and habitually tortured me by twisting my wrists and otherwise brutalizing me by means of his great strength."

"Flo" also claims that "Jack" threw water in her face, chased her into the bathroom and dazed her with a blow on the head. The bill also alleges that the prominent young clubfellow dragged her out of an automobile.

As a result of the above, and "Jack's" attempt to take their small child away from her at Montauk, L. I., "Flo" insists she is "permanently injured in mind and body."

"Jack" and "Flo" were married on September 11, 1926.

R. I. JURY HEARS POLICE KILLING

Providence, Oct. 22—The deathbed identification by Patrolman Henry R. Johnson of Cranston of Ralph Dennis as the man who shot him was related to the jury today in Superior Court, where Dennis is on trial for murder.

Patrolman Francis J. McElroy told of capturing Dennis and taking him to St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Johnson pointed at Dennis and cried, 'That's him, that's him, that's the man who shot me without giving me a chance,'" testified McElroy.

The story of the shooting as told by the dying officer while on the operating table was told by Police Capt. Clay Debos of Cranston, an uncle of the deceased.

"I was talking with a friend when I saw a man run out from behind a house," said Johnson according to Capt. Debos. "I stopped him and he said he had been seeing a girl home.

"I asked him where he lived and he said in a rooming house on Dorrance st. I told him there were no rooming houses on Dorrant st. and pulled a gun and shot me."

SEN. METCALF OUT FOR REPEAL

Providence, R. I., Oct. 22 (INS)—U. S. Senator Jesse H. Metcalf (R.), seeking re-election, today declared himself for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"It is my conviction," said a statement issued by the senator, "that temperance may be best promoted, that the moral tone of the American community may be lifted to a higher plane and that respect for law and reverence for government may be best preserved by a repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. This is a personal conviction and in no way alters my obligation set forth in the Republican platform, to vote as the people of Rhode Island vote in the matter of the referendum on November 4."

Former U. S. Senator Peter Gerry, the Democratic candidate, and the Democratic party platform have already declared for repeal.

Senator Metcalf declared against the return of the saloon and scored "a cumbersome police power within the federal government which has invited much corruption" and declared for the return of state control.

231 KILLED IN MINE BLAST

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—Wolff Bureau, German news agency, today estimated the total dead in yesterday's mine explosion in the Anna II shaft, Alsdorf, at 231. The figure, if correct, would make the disaster the greatest of its kind in Germany since 1908. When 360 miners perished in a coal dust explosion at Hamm.

The Wolff Bureau's figures include 170 bodies in mortuaries and 61 men underground, for all of whom hope has been given up. In addition many of 96 injured in hospitals probably will die, 35 being so badly burned they cannot speak.

Some doubt has been cast on the theory that the dynamite explosion was entirely responsible for the disaster with discovery of several sticks of unexploded dynamite in the shaft where the blast occurred.

What are Expensive Feet?

Whether or not you have expensive feet, has nothing to do with how much you pay for shoes per pair.

You have expensive feet if the shoes you buy fail to do what you expect of them in the way of comfort, style and service. You have expensive feet if shoes by the year, cost you more than they should. It is the shoes that you buy and then quickly discard because they don't give comfort, or don't look well, or simply won't stand up under wear that are really the expensive shoes.

Arch Preserver Shoes are never built specifically to meet a price. They have one object—to give comfort not obtainable in any other shoe; to give style and wear not exceeded in any other shoe; and to do it at the lowest price, consistent with these purposes.

Thousands and thousands of women in Boston know from actual experience that no other shoe can give the comfort of Arch Preserver Shoes, that no other shoe is so economical.

Tariff Seen as Aid to Textile Unemployment

Editor Boston American:

The unemployment problem is about as acute in this thrifty textile city of Lawrence as in any one of the hundreds of other cities and towns over the country. The main cause of such a condition in this city is plain. The cure for it for this city and other American textile cities is also plain. The one and practically only market for the worsted goods made in Lawrence lies within the boundaries of the United States. Take that market away from them or a portion of it among the worsted manufacturers of half a dozen European nations, in most of which the wages paid the operatives are only about one-third of what is paid the operatives in American mills, and you cause unemployment in that industry. With half the employes of such an American industry out of work most of the time for the past few years and no dividends for the shareholders for the past four years, there is naturally unemployment among the American workers and a greatly lessened spending power among the owners.

The tariff just passed by the Republican party, regardless of all the partisan talk of its opponents, is beginning to have its effect in shutting out the enormous volume of foreign-made worsted goods and American mills are begining to take on more help. Give the new tariff another six or eight months in which to operate in reducing greatly the tremendous inflow of foreign worsteds, and the probability is the worsted industry of the United States will be back to normal and 100,000 out-of-work people will be back in the plants.

JOSEPH McCARTHY.

Points Out Value of Traffic Lights

Editor Boston American:

If pedestrians are underrating the traffic lights, have them visit any section of the city after 6 p. m., when most officers are homeward bound.

You will notice these lights halting motorists to let you pass when crossing the street.

Didn't you wait double time before the lights were installed and there was no officer in sight?

In due time, motorists will be more accustomed to these lights; then they will get cautious in their driving. That will tend to lessen accidents.

West Pointers Praised for Excellent Ideals

Editor Boston American:

The West Point cadets impress one as the flower of American manhood. Erect in stature, their step bespeaks an education that builds for body and for mind.

I do not like to look upon them as war material, but as gentlemen trained in discipline to manners well worthy of emulation. A fine body of men in exemplification of America, all so alike in stability to the Union—unified.

MAX HENRY NEWMAN.

Prof. Rogers Not to Be Taken Seriously

Editor Boston American:

Prof. E. R. Rogers of Tech always seems to espouse an unpopular side. He has one great overmastering gift of stirring up controversy. He has been on the side of snobs. Now he is opposed to the Mass. State University, which has been advocated by such a leader in education as Dr. A. E. Winship of Boston.

I would rather agree with Dr. Winship than with Prof. Rogers upon opportunities to increase education. This flare up against the state university took place in the Central Congregational Church, Lynn, before the young people. The pastor of the church, Dr. Garfield Morgan, a member of the Lynn school committee, picked flaws in Prof. Rogers' argument against a state university.

He admirably defended it. State universities have been successful everywhere in the United States. They well filled a niche in educational opportunities. But we should never take Prof. Rogers seriously in what he says. He does love a verbal scrimmage. He does love to brush the fur the wrong way, and he will keep brushing until there is no fur to brush.

HENRY T. TATLOCK.

Honeymoon Humor Routs Mine Host

Editor Boston American:

A speaker before the Young People's Fellowship of one of the Boston churches told the following incident, which I think is too rich to be overlooked:

A newly married couple stopped for lunch in a hotel, leaving their auto across the street, where parking was allowed. The proprietor was very attentive to them, having discerned that they were honeymooners.

After going up several times to inquire how he could serve them, he asked:

"Well, now, what can I serve you both?"

"Honeymoon salad, please," came the reply.

"You have me on that, sir; may I ask what it consists of?"

"Just lettuce alone," the groom said, smiling.

How the young people at that meeting laughed.

New Yorker Grateful for American's Service

Editor Boston American:

May I express my gratitude to you for giving explicit information about a matter which I sought in two New York newspapers. I sent you a stamped envelope, and your reply was so prompt that it greatly aided me in a matter in this city.

It may seem strange to you that in New York city we seek information from Boston and get it.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I wonder if the artist, Percy Crosby, realizes the amount of good work he is doing with his characterization of Skippy. He shows Skippy as a boy with bad points, and yet these bad points are outweighed by the boy's good points. Then he brings in a character called Spumone, and Spumone is shown as the leader of a gang that corrupts every good of Vesey st., Skippy's street.

Skippy has the spunk to challenge Spumone's leadership and he organizes a new party, the Revolkalutionists. But he finds out that there are some very, very, very good people in his party who will not support him unless he acts as a saint and does as they tell him. Skippy, though, is a good leader and does as his conscience would have him, and we find him working harder than ever, defying Spumone and the very good members of his party.

Now let us put the characters into ordinary life. We see Skippy as the ordinary people, who disliked the liquor traffic and placed the Eighteenth Amendment in our Constitution. We see Spumone as the gangs that have come to being because of the amendment, and the wet interests that count on the laxity of the people to bring back a way of earning an easy living on others' sorrows. Then we see the very good members of the Revolkalution party as members of a league trying to dominate. They are too good to see their own faults and think all should take orders from them. They stand for the right but in a way that is wrong.

Here let us suggest that Skippy, the ordinary American people, will win in the coming battles. Common sense and the vigilance of their welfare will be the deciding factor. But—Spumone and his gangs reign until these same ordinary people remember that God will not help wipe them out until we help Him in that task, and then the greatest force of the universe and the greatest force on our earth can never fail.

"BUGS" MORAN DEFIANT AT LINGLE GRILL

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—The spotlight of investigation flashing again today on the slaying June 9 of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter, revealed George (Bugs) Moran, gangless gang leader, in a gesture of defiance.

"I am not afraid of anyone," Moran declared on being brought back to Chicago on a vagrancy charge, following his arrest early yesterday in a resort near Antioch. "Chicago is my home and I'm going to stay here. I won't be run out by cops, courts, citizens or crooks."

Asked by newspapermen where he had been since the Lingle slaying, Moran said he had been "here and there," hunting and fishing, with occasional visits to Chicago to collect dividends. He added that he could not be classed as a vagrant, having an income of around $25,000 a year as part owner of a cleaners and dyers company.

Moran is reported to be an enemy of Alphonse Capone, notorious gang leader, and it was Lingle's friendship for Capone that inclined police to believe that Moran might have had something to do with the newspaperman's death. Moran insisted he had nothing against Capone. When asked by reporters who slew seven of his followers in a North Clark st. garage a year ago last St. Valentine's day he merely replied:

"Santa Claus."

Ammel, Ocean Flier, Is Seeking Divorce

2 Injured by Bomb Blast at Rangoon

Rangoon, Burma, Oct. 22 (AP)—two native postal officials were injured today when a bomb exploded while they were opening a mailbag at the Pazundaung postoffice. The bomb was wrapped in a parcel believed to have been sent from Bombay.

IRISH PRAISE W. R. HEARST

New York, Oct. 22—Resolution censuring against the expulsion of William Randolph Hearst from Tammany and lauding the publisher's patriotism has been passed by the United Irish-American Society of Greater New York.

The resolution was passed at a meeting of the society, representing affiliated groups with a 200,000 membership, at 159 East 60th st. Col. Timothy J. Moynihan, formerly with New York's 69th Regiment of militia, was instructed to prepare a suitable scroll containing a text of the resolution, to be sent to Mr. Hearst. David Callan, presided at the meeting. The solution was introduced by John Fitzchrist, president of the George Washington Society.

Mr. Hearst was commended for asking public the secret Anglo-French naval pact.

Death of Pets Strengthens Family Murder Theory

Denver, Colo., Oct. 22 (AP)—Thursday. The cat and dog had been fed scraps from the O'Loughlin table.

The girl's stepmother, Mrs. Leo O'Loughlin, held for investigation, has maintained she knew nothing of Leona's death.

Expert Staff to Be at Food Fair

A staff of nationally known experts in domestic science will be featured at the annual Food Fair, which opens at Mechanics Building on Thursday and continues until Saturday, November 1.

Authorities, whose radio audiences extend from coast to coast, will be among the speakers. They will be available for conference and interviews, and will conduct an open forum between lectures to advise those who wish to consult them.

Death of two family pets from the effects of eating ground glass today strengthened the police theory that 10-year-old Leona O'Loughlin, drowned in a City Park lake, was the victim of a plot designed to exterminate the entire family.

The girl disappeared a week ago. Her bruised body, the stomach containing a quantity of ground glass, was found in the park lake Friday.

At the time, her father, Leo O'Loughlin, city detective, was in a hospital recovering from effects of eating food in which ground glass had been placed.

Police advanced the murder plot theory after they learned ground glass was found in the sugar at the home of Dennis O'Loughlin, father of the detective.

The elder O'Loughlin was host at a dinner party attended by all members of his immediate family. A pet cat died Wednesday, the day after the girl disappeared, and a dog

Women Outnumber Men in Divorce Pleas at London

London, Oct. 22 (AP)—Women outnumber men two to one in 850 petitions for divorce being heard in the Michaelmas term of court.

Apparently, attorneys appearing in many of the cases say, there is an important difference in the attitude of women, many of whom intend not to ask that the decree be made absolute.

By declining to take a final decree a woman prevents her husband marrying again.

The present divorce case list is the largest on record for one term.

THE PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By CARL MORRISON

The October meeting of the Foreign Commerce Club, held last night at the Hotel Brunswick, was attended by more than 100 members.

The principal speaker was Hugh Butler, New England manager of the Foreign and Domestic Commerce bureau. He discussed unemployment matters. Butler said that in the past, unemployment has been cured by new business. He praised the club for its program of endeavoring to bring new business to the port.

"When business is more or less depressed," said Butler, "that is the time when all authorities agree that the keenest merchants make most progress."

RAT CLEANUP

Two branches of the Federal government are uniting to clean up a rat menace existing at the Army Base. The military authorities and the U. S. Shipping Board are planning to spend large sums to destroy the thousands of rodents which are raising havoc in the wharves.

Until recently a lively dog was one of the best rat exterminators at the terminal. He enjoyed chasing the rats and breaking their backs with a sharp clash of his jaws, but he was "shanghaied" by a ship sailing to the Orient.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's Who's Who in Boston harbor is A. Douglas Cook, assistant trade commissioner in Berlin, Germany, now in Boston for conferences at the office of the foreign and domestic commerce bureau.

The former Reading man is an expert on transportation, textile, aeronautics and general shipping matters. He has spent three years in the Berlin office. His Boston visit is part of a national tour.

Mr. Cook reports that American business with Germany is increasing, representing last year an export of 410 billions of dollars and imports of $255,000,000. Germany has become America's third largest customer.

Two men who were questioned at length by police were released.

Medical Examiner Michael H. Scanlon completed his report of the autopsy which was forwarded to the office of the attorney general at Providence.

That they will help make ankles and legs straight and strong. That they will let toes spread out and grow as they should. Also they know that Cowards will wear through a whole season of hard usage. FRIENDS FLY TO MACKIE FUNERAL

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The funeral of Capt. Richard W. Mackie, former Colonial air mail and transport pilot in Boston, who was killed Sunday at Trenton, N. J., will be held this afternoon from his home in Valley Stream, L. I.

Leading the flight of Boston friends of Mackie's will be Frank C. Crowley, who flew the mail for almost a year with Mackie and the late "Hank" Tallman. Crowley, shocked at the death of his former flying companion, will make the trip in a Stearman biplane, with Henry E. Wallis as his passenger.

At the time of the funeral, three Curtiss-Wright planes, in V formation, will circle over the Boston Airport as a final tribute to Mackie. Harry D. Copland, manager of the local Curtiss base, will lead the formation.

"Flyers aren't supposed to have nerves," said Crowley today, "and Mackie was one who lived up to that belief. It'll feel queer today, flying over the old mail route to attend the funeral of Mackie. He told me a week ago that he had flown 119 types of airplane."

SARGENT VISITS

Winthrop O. Sargent, first federal inspector in this section, and at present inspector of flying schools for the eastern seaboard, stopped at Boston Airport long enough for Al Bourdon to take his physical examination. Bourdon is an inspector in the southern part of New England. After short conference with Bob Hoyt, local inspector, the pair continued to Springfield.

GIRL FLYER

Miss Mary Goodrich, of Hartford, Conn., landed at the airport yesterday in her Kinner powered Fairchild biplane. She was accompanied by Mrs. Priscilla Purcell, also of Hartford. The trip here took 70 minutes, according to Miss Goodrich.

The annual trek to Florida of several of the independent fliers at Boston Airport is being planned. Russell Parker, former Curtiss pilot, is already on his way down. In addition to flying, Parker will run an archery range in his spare time. Val Chick will equip his Curtiss Robin with pontoons soon and depart for the southland.

Truthful Bandit Helped by Victim of His Holdup

Chicago, Oct. 22 (AP)—A holdup man who wouldn't lie has been found in Chicago.

And because he told the truth he not only is free, but his family has food and his sick wife has been taken to a hospital for treatment at the expense of the man he held up the other night.

A. C. Mayerle, manufacturing jeweler, the victim, told the story today:

"I'm afraid," he told the holdup when the latter pointed a wavering pistol at him, "that this is going to be pretty tough on my wife and kids, so couldn't you spare me part of my money."

The pistol continued to waver, but its wielder managed to say:

"I'm not used to this. Never tried it before and wouldn't do it now for myself. I've got a wife, too, and four children. Wife's sick. No groceries—no coal. I'll give you back $25. I simply got to have $10."

Mayerle asked his name and address. The next day he checked up and found the man told the truth. As a reward he started a food and fuel fund, got the man's wife to the hospital and now is trying to find him a job.

FILENE WARNS OF "WASTE"

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (AP)—Edward A. Filene, president of William Filene's Sons Co., Boston, said today at the consumer marketing conference of the American Management Association that unless manufacturers and department stores can work out mutually satisfactory and mutually advantageous relations that will make possible the joint conquest of the present great waste in production and distribution, neither can survive in its present form or ownership.

"I am convinced from my studies and experience that the conquering type of department store organization will be the department store chain, in which every department will be a unit in a chain of similar departments in the various stores of the chain," he said.

Speaking of the relationship of such a type of distribution to the manufacturers, he said that for the present:

"I am, as I have been in the past, of the firm belief that it does not pay for distributors to manufacture."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

PLUTO WATER STANDARD LAXATIVE ON OCEAN LINERS

YOU may go where you like and when you like, but old Constipation follows you wherever you go. Fortunately, though, Pluto Water—America's physic—follows you, too!

Take the big ocean liners, for instance. They haven't any room for half-way remedies. They've got to have medicines that work—the first time, every time! Their medical supplies are limited to essentials.

They all carry Pluto Water. Even the big foreign ships . . . . ships that come from countries where you find mineral springs everywhere—Aix, Vichy, Carlsbad, Wiesbaden, Marienbad, Nauheim—carry American Pluto Water! Pluto Water is the universal choice afloat and ashore!

Good reasons for it, too!

Pluto Water is constipation's worst enemy. Pluto Water does a complete job every time. Pluto Water flushes out your insides—gets rid of the poisonous waste matter that clogs up your system—keeps other organs in tone—keeps you clean, healthy inside!

Wherever you go, you'll find Pluto Water close at hand. Ships' stores—drugstores and chemists' shops in every civilized country—good old Pluto Water, native of Indiana, U. S. A.!

Doctors in foreign countries as well as American doctors prescribe Pluto Water regularly. Let one well-known doctor tell you what he thinks of Pluto Water.

"The ideal laxative is one that effects a thorough bowel cleansing with a minimum of irritation. For a mild, thorough laxative I find Pluto Water best to use." Another doctor calls Pluto "the most perfect natural body cleanser."

These doctors are right. Pluto Water is French Lick Springs in a bottle. It comes to you direct from French Lick. It contains all the properties of the famous waters there.

Pluto Water is sure-fire relief for constipation—even when the condition has become serious. Pluto Water just can't harm delicate tissues. It acts as a tonic—stimulates the digestive organs and makes them work normally—gives you an appetite—peps you up!

No doubt your own family doctor prescribes and recommends Pluto Water. Ask him to tell you about it at first hand!

Pluto Water is no farther away than your neighborhood drugstore or fountain. Two sizes—20c and 45c. Keep a bottle always on hand—you never know when you'll need it—and when you need it, it works!

FANNING WITH George Underwood

"Yours, Always On the Level, Johnny Risko"

Old Home Week When Dartmouth Comes to Town

Little Black Bear That Grew Into a Grizzly

"Yours, On the Level, John L. Sullivan." That is the way the great Sullivan, than whom no sports hero, not even Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth of the present, ever held a greater hold on popular fancy, or occupied a warmer spot in the hearts of the fans, used to sign himself. They were not idle words. Every act of the blustering, roistering, roaring Boston blade was stamped with sincerity. The sports world forgave Sullivan for many things, because they loved him greatly for one. He was always "on the level."

"Yours, On the Level, Johnny Risko." The Cleveland Baker, who clambers through the ropes against Dick Daniels in the Boston Garden tomorrow night, has just as much right to sign himself that way as did John L. Sullivan of old.

George Underwood

Johnny Risko, the Bohemian from Cleveland, like John Lawrence Sullivan, the Irishman from Boston — good Americans both — always has been "on the level." Never has the finger of suspicion been pointed at him; never has Scandal dared to twist his name on her slimy tongue. Out of the filth and foulness that sometimes besmirches not only boxing, but professional sport of all kinds, and will besmirch it as long as the parasites who commit the nastiness are allowed to attach themselves to "the game," Johnny Risko's touselled head and rugged, honest fighting face rises clean and honorable. He is a credit to his calling and to his race.

Like Sullivan of old and Jack Dempsey of the present, Johnny Risko always has given the fans a run for their money. An opponent must fight or jump over the ropes. The turnstiles click like Howitzers whenever, wherever, against whoever Johnny fights. Risko has been true to the fans and they are true to him.

HOME BOYS

When the Big Green Team from the Blue Hills of New Hampshire comes wah-whoo-wahing into the Stadium next Saturday afternoon Bostonians will be torn by conflicting emotions, as they say in the best sellers. Harvard is the home team. But Dartmouth, this season, more even than in the past, largely is composed of home boys. Keney, meeney, miney, mo, who are we going to root for, the home boys or the home team?

A glimpse of the Dartmouth roster would give you the impression someone picked an All Star Greater Boston Scholastic Eleven and shipped 'em up to Hanover to be welded into the Big Green Team. Just look at the flock of Boston boys Capt. Hal Andres, himself from Newton high, is leading down from Hanover.

Hank Johnson, fullback and Len Clark, half, both played with Andres at Newton high. Hank Barber, tackle, and the biggest man on the squad, tipping the beam at 224 in his birthday suit, is from Cambridge Latin. Forrest Branch, now at end, came from Medford high to Hanover as an all-scholastic center, Red Porter, back, comes from Beverly high. Eddie Stokes, end, also is a Beverly boy.

Art Connolly, end, hails from Swampscott high. Paul Crehan, now playing tackle, is from Roxbury, Johnny Donavan, halfback, is from Norwood. Aarne Frigard, halfback, a Maynard boy, prepped at Andover, where he was captain.

Also on the Dartmouth squad are Bill Caynor, guard, from Somerville high; F. L. George, back, Arlington high; "Junie" Hawkes, quarter, Belmont high; Eddie O'Connor, tackle, Malden high; Dan Rollins, quarter, Brookline high; Charlie Sullivan, end, Boston English; Bill St. Louis, guard, Reading; Nate Wentworth, end, Auburndale; Sid Wheeler, quarter, Wollaston.

In addition to the 20 boys from Greater Boston on the big Green team there are a whole flock of other New Englanders. Included among them are Stan Yudicky, who came from Nashua, N. H., to Hanover, unheralded and unsung, and broke through to become the first string varsity end; Dan Degasis, back, Nashua; Gay Bromberg, star guard from New Britain, Conn.; Hal Durgin, giant end, Lewiston ,Me.; Sonny Foley, back, Worcester; Bill Kimball, center, Newburyport; Charlie Nims, guard, Greenfield; Bill Phinney, guard, Manchester, N. H., and Eddie Sutton, fullback, Waterbury, Conn.

The big football battle over yonder on the banks of the Charles this week-end isn't only a football game. It is an Old Home Week celebration. The home boys tug even harder on the heart strings than does the home team.

A BEAR STORY

With the opening of the hunting season how about a little hunting? The ayes have it. Would you like a bear story, children? The first bear we ever saw. The biggest bear. A most peculiar kind of a bear. We've seen a lot of 'em since, but we never saw one who grew from a little black bear into an enormous, ferocious grizzly inside of ten minutes.

We might as well let Arthur Duffey know that the aforementioned bear made us do a hundred in faster time than "Duff" ever dreamed of doing. Let me tell you, folks, Arthur Duffey in his running days was the fastest sprinter we ever have seen or hope to see.

It was berry time on the old Shawanaga. Sunday morning we strung a pail around our necks and went forth to pick some of those big, high bush Canadian blueberries. Big as a walnut. All you had to do was to "milk" 'em off the bushes. You could fill a four-quart pail in no time.

We were picking and eating at the same time, pulling 'em off the bush and into the pail with one hand and pulling 'em off the bush and poking 'em down our gullet with the other, when we heard the sticks cracking near us. Another one of the boys from camp, we thought. We sneaked over to investigate. As we pushed aside some bushes we suddenly came upon Mister B'ar — not 12 feet away.

He was standing on his hind legs, wrapping the berry bushes with his forelegs, pulling 'em down into his yawning maw. His face, breast, belly and legs were covered with crushed blueberries. He caught sight of us just as we caught sight of him.

He turned, mouth dripping berries, forearms spread wide as if for a tackle, and gazed at us open mouthed.

Later on when we became a bit more acquainted with little black b'ars, we would have laughed at the sight. But then—one look was enough!

We went away from there. We broke all of Duffey's sprint records and a few more broad and high jumping figures Gay Bromberg, who passed four rabbits, and two deer. Left a fox tied to the track. At every jump that b'ar got bigger and bigger. By the time we hit camp he had grown into a grizzly 10 Feet tall and weighing two tons. We attempted to tell the logging boss so.

"H——l, Yank," he replied. "There ain't a grizzly within a thousand mile. Little black b'ars are thicker than chipmunks."

But it took a long while to convince us that little brown b'ar wasn't a grizzly.

SULLIVAN TO PLAY AT END FOR GREEN

By BILL GRIMES

According to the starting lineup, Dartmouth sent Harvard, Charlie Sullivan, Ward Donner and Bob Wilkin have won regular berths on the Big Green.

Although Charlie Sullivan and Bob Wilkin have been with the Big Green varsity squad for three and two years respectively, Ward Donner is a sophomore and unknown to the general Dartmouth public until the B. U. game.

Bill Grimes

Charlie Sullivan, who is a former English high school end, has been fighting to win a "D" for three years at Dartmouth. Sullivan was rated as one of the best flankmen in the interscholastic ranks while representing the dark and light blue. He won his class numerals during his freshman year and although he has been prominent with the varsity, he has never been allowed to play in letter games for a sufficient length of time to be awarded a letter.

Sullivan is a big rugged boy, standing six feet and weighing about 190. He is fast and good blocker and a hard tackler. He has always been a willing worker and an attentive pupil on the gridiron.

Until George "Bulger" Lowe, former Fordham and Lafayette star, joined the Dartmouth coaching staff ten days ago, Charlie Sullivan was about a fourth string end. His rise to the first varsity is due to a combination of injuries, which forced Larry Durgin and Hal Mackey to the side lines, and the advent of "Bull" Lowe.

Wilkin's Assignment Is Big Surprise

As Sullivan started the Columbia game, at end, for the Indians of the North, he was entitled to open against Harvard, as he gave a fine account of himself, and his selection was not as much of a surprise as was the assigning of Bob Wilkin to start at fullback.

Wilkin, who hails from Salt Lake City, is a fine fullback, but until this week he has been ranked after Hank Johnson and Eddie Sutton. Johnson has had the first call all season, but he was hurt in the Boston University game, and evidently has lost his berth. Dana Sutton was Head Coach Cann's first choice against Harvard a year ago. He was hurt in New Jersey, and did not again get back into his stride.

Wilkin is a fine built athlete, standing about 6 feet, and weighing close to 190. He is a line plunger, packing a powerful leg drive, and is strong defensively.

Ward Donner, Dartmouth has uncovered a first-class halfback. Donner was on the freshman squad last season, but he never got a chance to show at his best. He has been playing with the third and fourth teams all fall, and did not make his presence felt until the week of the B. U. game.

It was his speed and shiftiness that attracted the attention of his coaches, and when Len Clark, Aarne Frigard, Bill McCall and Sonny Foley were forced out by injuries, Donner and Porter were taken up from the scrub and both made good, but the latter was hurt and lost his chance.

Donner Is Fast and Is Expert Receiver of Passes

Donner is tall and rangy. He is very fast and has featured, especially in practice, with many clever runs. He is also adept at receiving passes, which makes him an asset to the Big Green. Donner is only 19 years of age, prepped at Albany Academy, is a brother of Rollie Donner, the varsity broad jumper, and was a member of the freshman track team last spring.

Although Dartmouth is recognized as a veteran team, the Green will only have one player, Shep Wolff, in its starting backfield, who was in action at the opening kickoff last year. Bill Morton, who will pilot the Indians, warmed the bench a year ago and watched Al Masters until the curtailment, and the New Rochelle boy did not get his opportunity until the Brown game, in which he featured.

The Green will also have a new guard, Bill Hoffman, who is playing the position occupied by Paul Crehan for two years. Crehan was moved out to tackle as soon as Hoffman reported for the varsity, which is conclusive proof of the Pennsylvanian's ability.

Hoffman is an ideal running mate for the veteran Gay Bromberg, who is one of the greatest guards in the country. Hoffman and Bromberg are the same height, but the latter with his 200 pounds, is about six pounds heavier than Hoffman. Due to their speed, they are both

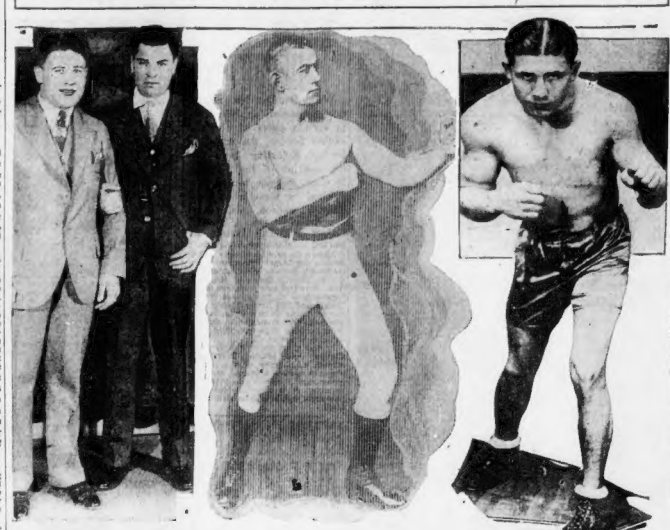
THREE OF A KIND, "ALWAYS ON THE LEVEL"



JACK DEMPSEY, who, after the one lone slip with Puchlo Jim Flynn, never failed to give the fans a run for their money, introducing Johnny Risko. "Here's a man after my own heart," says Manassa Jack.

"YOURS, ALWAYS ON THE LEVEL, John Lawrence Sullivan." That's the way old John L., now in the Valhalla of the Fighting Men, used to sign himself. They were not idle words. Some called him a roistering bully, but none could call him insincere. He was always out to win.

JOHNNY RISKO, who never faked, never quit, who comes out fighting at the opening gong and never lets up till the final bell. Dick Daniels will have to fight tomorrow night or jump over the ropes. Johnny and Dick clash in the feature card in the Boston Garden.

DANIELS IN LINE FOR BIG SHOTS

Dick Daniels, practically unknown six months ago, is in line for several lucrative matches if the young St. Paul heavyweight trounces the veteran campaigner, Johnny Risko, in tomorrow night's scheduled 10-rounder, at the Boston Garden.

Nate Lewis is anxious to pair him with Tuffy Griffith in Chicago, and Tom McArdle, matchmaker of the New York Garden, is on Manager Mike Collins' trail to use Daniels either against Griffith or Young Stribling.

Daniels has impressed the railbirds at Jim Toland's gym, where he is putting on the finishing touches to his training, that he is one of the best looking heavyweight prospects uncovered in years. He boxes beautifully, is on his toes and punches hard in close.

His greatest weapons are right and left hand uppercuts. He stands 6 feet in his stocking feet and tips the beam at the 187 notch. He is 21 years old. He has been fighting only three years, from a bantam up, and during that short stretch of time he has fought 92 battles.

Risko rules a slight favorite. The sharpers are quoting him 6 to 5 to grab the "duke," meaning the decision. Johnny has broken the hearts of many youngsters. He has never been accused of trickery; win, lose or draw, he can be depended upon to give the fans a run for their money.

Jack Derval and Knute Hansen will meet in the semifinal 10 rounder.

In the opening ten, Joe Zelinsky of Winthrop squares off against George Pavlick of Cleveland. Three Rubites will appear in the preliminaries. In the first six Jack Casper of East Boston meets Johnny D'Zuro of New London, Ct., and in the second sextet Russell Kelcourse of Quincy battles Victor Lotti of Marlboro.

Cambridge C. C. to Play Under Lights

The Cambridge Catholic Club will play their postponed game with the St. Pius club of Lynn under the floodlights at Lynn General Electric Field tonight.

The St. Pius eleven is composed of former Classical and Lynn English high school stars while many of the C. C. C. have seen service under Coach Leander McDonald at Cambridge Latin.

Gate of Heaven Without Game

The Gate of Heaven club of South Boston is now without a game for Sunday because the Pere Marquettes are going to use the park scheduled for the contest with the Norcross C. C.

The Gates would like to meet the Haverhill pros or the Framingham T. T. The manager is Tom Meagher, 401 K st., South Boston. His phone number, S. B. 0017-R.

Gagnon Defeats O'Kelley in Close Battle at Arena

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Jack Gagnon of Brighton, by virtue of his 10-round verdict over Con O'Kelley, champion of Ireland at the Argonne A. A. show at the Arena, will clash with Young Stribling of Georgia here at the Arena on Friday evening, October 31.

The battle for the right to meet Stribling was fast, and the fans were divided on the decision, many believing that O'Kelly had the edge.

Albion Holden of Attleboro, who was knocked down in the final bout of his six-round bout with Vincent Trescott of Somerville, received a slight concussion, and was held at the City Hospital for observation. His condition is not regarded as serious.

O'Kelley and Gagnon Fight Close All the Way

In the main bout, Con O'Kelley, who weighed 194 pounds, and Jack Gagnon, weighing 192 pounds, started off with the bell, slashing and poking at each other with left and right hand socks.

O'Kelley seemed to have a slight margin in the opening round, while the next two found Gagnon out front by a slight margin.

The fourth frame found Con O'Kelley chucking right hand punches at Gagnon and the Frenchman was sent back by the stinging blows. There were at least a half dozen which connected perfectly with Gagnon's jaw.

Gagnon scored with two rights in succession in the fifth frame to O'Kelley's head and then ripped a pair of rights to the body. O'Kelley came back fighting and landed with lefts and rights to the body, making the round fairly even.

O'Kelley opened up the sixth frame throwing lefts and rights at Gagnon's head and body. Gagnon sank two in the mid-section of the Irish heavyweight.

O'Kelley popped Gagnon with a trio of stiff lefts to the jaw, then tossed a terrific overhand right that staggered Gagnon in the seventh. Gagnon started a storm of punches but could not offset O'Kelley's advantage.

Gagnon opened the eighth with a stiff right to the heart. Gagnon shot a few more to the body with occasional left hands to the face. O'Kelley landed many shots and the round was fairly even.

O'Kelley won the ninth round and also had the better of the final round.

Hartwell Wins From House by Technical K. O. in Fourth

Joe Venuti, Boston, defeated Charlie Kelley of Newton in the opening six-rounder. The second bout between Odonni Piazza, Italy, and Billy Gonyea, Worcester, was stopped in the fourth round and the verdict was given Piazza.

Fight Fans at Arena Honor Memory of Nick Flatley

Fight fans paid tribute to the memory of Nick Flatley, late sports editor of the Boston Evening American, in the Boston Arena before the main bout between Con O'Kelly and Jack Gagnon.

Frank Ducey eulogized Nick, while Nick's vacant chair, draped in a mourning bow and palm sprays rested in the middle of the ring.

Death of Boxer Is Called Accident

New York, Oct. 22—"Accidental homicide" was the decision of the court on the death of Carl Baldus, who died in a bout with Lawrence Hogan at the Lenox Sporting Club. Hogan was acquitted.

Baldus, a former sparring partner of Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight.

Before Magistrate Alexander brought in a homicide verdict court testimony showed that Baldus had been suffering from status lymphaticus, a glandular disorder. This is the same ailment that contributed to the death of "Tiger" Flowers, once middleweight champion.

Deputy Medical Examiner Gonsales declared that even a severe mental shock might have caused death without physical violence.

Medford Boy to Help Coach B. U. Frosh

Ernie Tutten, Boston University's varsity end for three years, has been appointed to the freshman coaching staff.

Tutten is a Medford boy, and he has won three football letters at Boston University. Last year he was the highest scoring lineman in the East, having made five touchdowns on long passes.

Ernie will take over his duties this afternoon as assistant to Coach Washburn, and will work with the ends and backs.

STEVENS CALLS OFF SCRIMMAGE

New Haven, Oct. 22—Coach Mal Stevens of Yale decided not to scrimmage his team this week as it practices for the Army game, fearing injuries to his players.

Instead he will give the squad a long workout on fundamentals.

Booth and McLennan directed the first and second backfields, respectively, on signal drill. With Booth were Alsten, Dunn and Crowley, who started the Brown game, and who undoubtedly will start against the Cadets. Beane, Taylor and Muhlfeld were in McLennon's combination.

Charley Holm, third-string quarterback, who has been on the injured list, is back with the squad.

Dorchester Boy to Lead B. U. Frosh

Boston University's freshmen football team has elected Leo Silton, of Dorchester, captain of the team for the remainder of the season.

The Dorchester boy holds down a tackle position and is one of the most promising beta on the B. U. squad for a varsity job next year.

The frosh have played two games this fall and have lost to New Hampshire and have tied Tufts. On Saturday morning they play Springfield at Nickerson Field, Weston.

HARVARD STAR HAD BEEN IN HOSPITAL

Completely well and rested after two days in Stillman Infirmary at Harvard, Capt. Ben Ticknor was scheduled to climb back into football togs as the Harvard team began wind up exercises for the invading Dartmouth team today.

Ticknor's sudden retirement to the Harvard hospital started a wave of rumors around Harvard which were quickly dispelled by Harvard football officials. The Crimson All-American center had only slight injuries following the Army game, and Coach Horween announced that Ticknor will definitely be in the Harvard lineup Saturday.

In one of the most hectic days in Harvard sport history, Harvard officials further buried the ghost of the Harvard coaching situation when Bill Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, stated that while Arnie Horween has officially resigned as Harvard coach, no appointment of a successor will take place until after the present season is over.

Meanwhile the Harvard team itself has put on speed in quantities in preparing for the invading Hanoverians.

Return of Devens Will Help Harvard Air Offense

With Charlie Devens back in togs for the first time in 10 days, Horween's lateral pass department took on a decidedly improved appearance. Devens, Mays, Crickard, White and Schereschewsky, the leading Harvard backfield men, were given an extensive workout in lateral passing pairs.

The fact that Harvard's laterals were somewhat futile against the fast Army line has not shaken Horween's confidence in the branch of Harvard offense a bit. Harvard will rely heavily on laterals again on Saturday.

Bob Ogden, varsity right end, missed another day at the field yesterday, but no fear is held that he will not be able to play Saturday. Ogden, together with Vic Harding on the opposite wing, is expected to strengthen Harvard's air game considerably.

Coach Walter Cleary, dissatisfied with the work of the Harvard line, sent his forwards through a stiff workout in their last appearance at Soldiers Field. While Horween's backs spent the day over their blackboard charts, the linemen were given charging and tackling practice in quantities.

Harvard Line Must Show Greater Speed to Hold Green

The Cantab line must speed up if it hopes to hold the Dartmouth team, Cleary says. As a set the Crimson forwards have never had opportunity to work together, for this is the first week almost since the beginning of the season that Horween has had his so-called "A" line working as a unit.

The Harvard coaches will also pay attention to their reserve crop this week. Horween intends to rely heavily on his Crimson replacements, and it is likely that every Harvard player on the squad will see some service Saturday.

Among the most likely to see action are Jim Baldwin and Yahan Moushegian, ends; Trafford and Kuehn, tackles, and Bill Ginman, a guard. Henry Gilden will replace Ben Ticknor if Horween decides to give the Harvard captain a day of rest, while all the Harvard backs, including three complete quartets of carriers, will be used.

Lynn English Quarterback Is Key to Team's Success

MORIARTY IS FINE FIELD GENERAL

By BILL CONNELL

While the headliners of the schoolboy gridmen have been getting the glory this fall, a number of high grade performers have been playing great football without much of a share in the press notices.

George Moriarty, Lynn English quarterback, is one of these. A smart field general, Moriarty's strong point is in the way he can handle the ball. Much of the effectiveness of the Lynn English attack has been due to the passes of Moriarty.

Bill Connell

Lynn English has, as a rule, grid coaches who have watched the team in action, an offence that is a bit more advanced than that of ordinary high school elevens. Working with a strong line from tackle to tackle, the clever English backs and ends have an amazing variety of plays at their command.

Laterals, plain and fancy, forwards, some with laterals after the forward has been completed, are executed smoothly by Lynn English. The running attack is, with Geniewicz and Jannell carrying, outstanding. But it is in the aerial game in which English excels.

The work of George Moriarty is responsible for the way that the pass plays function. Moriarty is not rated with Geniewicz and Jannell as a ball carrier but his perfect handling of the ball makes certain the proper working of Lynn plays.

Moriarty Is Key to Lynn English Success

Without Moriarty in action it is doubtful if Lynn English could baffle its foes with many of the plays now used.

A notable thing about the Lynn English backfield is the size of the boys. Almost all the backs and ends of the Lynn team are tall. This means that successfully they can flip fast flat passes which a schoolboy of ordinary height is unable to touch even though he may be between the passer and receiver.

Lynn English doesn't anticipate much trouble from Waltham on Saturday, though the Waltham team is improving and may furnish better opposition than expected. The Lynn English attack, with Moriarty tossing passes and calling plays, should prove too good for the Watch City eleven.

SABAUSKY INJURED

Tony Sabausky of Hindge Tech had a bad knee but the injured knee has healed completely and Tony is going in high again. Hindge will need its star in good shape when the Cambridge team faces Brookline in an important Suburban league fray on Saturday at Russell Field, North Cambridge.

LARONDE IN SHAPE

Oliver LaRonde, Leander MacDonald's star back of the Cambridge Latin team, has recovered from a sprained ankle and will be fit for the Haverhill clash, Saturday. Ed Conlon, end; Tweet Reardon, center; Fran O'Keefe, back, are going well for the Cambridge outfit, a sophomore find of LeCarcia, a sophomore find of Leander MacDonald's has the stuff to make a good gridman.

SMITH A STAR

Center and Captain Dickson Smith of Browne & Nichols is a standout this year. The private school team has a weak line and Smith has to go well to make his team look at all good. Capt. Smith Halfback Don Smith, Johnny Adams, a tackle; Dewey Best and Fullback Myron Tenney are the stars of Charley Linehan's Browne & Nichols eleven.

TWIN BILL TOMORROW

A Boston school doubleheader is listed for tomorrow at the Franklin stadium, with Brighton battling South Boston and Mechanic Arts facing Charlestown. Paul Dailey, Brighton end, has shown a lot of improvement this fall. He is a good wingman. Paul Herkeley, a Brighton lineman will get a tryout in the backfield today.

COVIELLO SUSPENDED.

Arthur Coviello, veteran back at Everett, is the latest football star suspended from the Everett high school eleven. Coach Dennis Gildea of Everett said today.

"If the suspension of Coviello does not have the desired effect," said Gildea today, "other members of the squad also will be treated in the same manner. We must have the proper spirit on the squad, and we will take whatever measures may be necessary to get that spirit."

HEFFERNAN STARS.

Phil Heffernan, fullback of the Salem high eleven, is one of the most dependable backs to play at Salem in recent years.

Last season Phil was at a halfback berth, but was shifted to full this fall.

Morgan Gets Duke

Hot Off the Gridiron

By Associated Press

West Point, N. Y.—Army appears to have developed another fine pair of ends as replacements for the brilliant Messinger and Carlmark. Malloy and Burlingame were used on the wings yesterday and showed a lot of speed in going about their duties.

Providence, R. I.—Although it is considered bad form to cheer when an opponent is hurt, Brown is expecting to hear a few whoops from Holy Cross with the news that Bucky Harris, Bruin second string quarterback, is out of action. Last year Bucky ran the opening kickoff back for a touchdown against the Crusaders.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Gil Doble thinks placement kicking is a minor point in football, but he doesn't overlook it. The booting of Capt. Hunt in recent games hasn't been good enough so yesterday the Cornell coach had three other men trying out for the job.

New York—The town of Waltham, Mass., is expected to spend most of Saturday afternoon listening to the radio on the Fordham-N. Y. U. game. Five Waltham boys, Stano and Tracey of Fordham and Comcannon, Greenblatt and Ryan of N. Y. U., are due to take part in the action.

Hamilton, N. Y.—All is not lost for Colgate, although Walter Terry, regular left halfback is out of the Penn State game with a pulled tendon. Coach Andy Kerr has three good candidates fighting for his place.

Princeton, N. J.—If Princeton's varsity keeps on losing games, Bill Roper might do well to replace it with the freshman team. The young Tigers held the big team almost even through an hour's scrimmage yesterday.

Pittsburgh—With Pitt's scrub team as strong as it is, Coach Jock Sutherland is not going to let any of his injured regulars scrimmage against it. They all remained out yesterday for fear or further hurts, and two subs, Madmurdo and Hirschberg, did not even get into signal practice.

Wiggins Fined $25 for Drunkenness

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 22 (INS)—Chuck Wiggins, Indianapolis "playboy" heavyweight pugilist, was fined $25 and costs for drunkenness by Municipal Judge Paul C. Wetzel.

Wiggins chased patrons of a restaurant into the street and after being taken to the city prison, assaulted three prisoners, police said. A year ago, the playful boxer fought a dozen Indianapolis policemen and wrecked a hotel lobby, a prank for which he served a jail sentence.

THREE MORE BRUIN STARS REPORT

With immigration restrictions apparently applying only to certain parts of the Canadian border, the squad of Bruins reporting here for the opening of the National Hockey League season was swelled by three when Cecil Tiny Thompson, goal tender superb; Norman ("Dutch") Gainor and Bill Hutton reported to Manager Art Ross.

Among those who already are in Boston are Lionel Hitchman, Percy Galbraith, Cooney Weiland, and, of course, George Owen, of the regulars. The two new members of the Bruins now in Boston are Smoky Harris and Bill Lynn, Harris coming from the Pacific Coast league, where he was one of those athletes who earn their penalties without any effort at all.

In the meanwhile, Aubrey "Dit" Clapper and Martin Barry, the strong, silent man of the Bruins, are encamped in Montreal, awaiting governmental sanction to enter this country. It is expected that their passports will be approved immediately.

HEYDLER URGES RULE CHANGES

New York, Oct. 22—Important revisions are needed in the baseball rules, according to John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

Although refusing to comment on the suggestion of President E. S. Barnard of the American League that the sacrifice fly be banned, Heydler predicted there would be a thorough revision of the rules at the December meeting of the two major leagues.

"Scoring rules in particular need clarifying," he said, "so that the average fan can tell the difference between an error and a hit. The method of figuring pitchers' records also is in need of changing.

"There is a committee of baseball writers working on the clarification of the rules, but I cannot say just what revisions they will recommend. Personally I prefer to remain out of any baseball discussion until the football season is over."

BANTAM GOLF

by JOE CASHMAN

At the suggestion of the Boston Evening American, a group of prominent miniature golf course owners gathered at the Hotel Statler last evening and formed an organization to protect and advance their interests.

The organization was officially named the Miniature Golf Operators Assn. and Dr. Niles of Somerville was elected president, C. E. King, secretary and John J. Croston, treasurer.

Several owners who desired to join the league were unable to be present at the first meeting and there are undoubtedly many others who haven't heard of it yet who will be anxious to join when they do. All course owners are welcome. There will be another meeting in two weeks and anybody who desires may join at that time.

Among those present at the first meeting were Dr. Niles of the Mystic course, Somerville, Clarence King and Charles Kelly of the Sheldon Fairbanks organization; John J. Croston of the Merrimac Drive course, Cambridge; Joseph W. Doherty of the Gigantic course, Allston; Leon M. Murray of the Braves Field course; Jack LeCain of the Cottage Farm course; Frederick Priebe of the Gallivan blvd. course; Norris Twombly of the Country Club course, Brighton; Henry Morgan and Arthur Horton, owners of courses in Melrose, Brighton and Wakefield.

There are 18 holes, many of them different and all of them attractive, and the last word in artificial greens is being used. It is a carpet substance which is claimed to have the same pull as grass.

It is planned to keep the course open both day and night and the general public as well as the hotel guests may play at any time.

Managers of spacious courses would do well to put in one of those golf machines similar to the one at the New England Golf School on Stuart st. Any course in the world can be played on it, the length of every stroke registering correctly on the chart. The pros prefer the machine to the midget courses because it gives them a better line on their game.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Here we see a terrific hitter, at the point in his swing where the clubhead will, in a fraction of a second dispatch the ball. Note the position of h i s wrists, which at this point remain "cocked." Now to be in that position in this point in his forward swing, it must be obvious to you that they have been held there—or "delayed" — all the way forward with the club. Here the wrists "let loose" and the left arm straightens out into the ball. The clubhead, being in motion, will swing through of itself, from this position, far better than it can be swung through by lunging at it and pressing it. Actually, this par shooter is in a position of utmost poise here and is not forcing his club at all. He is not hitting, but is swinging. Apply that principle to your own play.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS:

Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Oct. 22.—It seems that the boys are laughing ha-ha-ha, and also ho-ho-ho at the current pugilistic performance arranged for Madison Square Garden, a bout for the light-heavyweight championship of the whole world, between the incumbent, Smacksie Maxie Rosenbloom, and one Abie Bain, of New Jersey, ("How Have You Bain?")

Indeed the guffaws emanating from the boys over this match, viewing it as a stellar attraction for the $5,000,000 Garden, are what you might call raucous. They seem to consider it the farthest south of all the fistic presentations of recent years, not because of Smacksie Maxie, of course, but because of Abie Bain.

The boys cannot see Abie as a contender for Smacksie Maxie's title. Abie's greatest crime in the eyes of the critics is lack of reputation. He is well known in New Jersey, but has no acquaintance among the ringworms of the Big Town. He appeared once in Madison Square Garden in a preliminary bout against Pal Silvers, Abie taking the decision after a brisk battle.

So you can't say that Abraham is a headliner in these parts, and naturally the boys are speculating as to how and why he got the match for a championship title, especially against one of the best of the champions. Some of the lads are positively indignant about it, though it strikes me that the Garden has a perfect right to put on any matches it pleases, since it is the sufferer if a match fails to draw.

And, as a matter of fact, it

Damon Runyon.

Smacksie Maxie and Abie get just the Garden's normal draw tonight, which is around $25,000, the corporation will probably make more profit than it might make on a more serious production.

Rosenbloom May Move Up to Heavyweight Class

Also there is some method in this apparent matchmaking madness. Smacksie Maxie is a good card in New York against good opponents. There are no good opponents for him in the light heavyweight division just now.

He would draw well against heavyweights, but the boxing commission will not permit him to be matched with heavyweights until he defends his title of light heavyweight champion.

The fight with Abie Bain will be considered a defense of the light heavyweight title, and then it is expected that the commission will permit Smacksie Maxie to fight heavyweights.

So even if the Bain match isn't so hot, the Garden will make it up by inserting Smacksie Maxie with Gerald Ambrose Griffin, or some such. There are more ways of killing a cat than choking it with butter.

Personally, I think this weight prohibition by the commission is foolish in a case where a champion has no contention in his own division, like Rosenbloom. It seems to me it would be better to let him go ahead and fight some good heavyweight, if there is such a critter, right off the bat, rather than impose a weak match at weight upon the proletariat.

If the boxing commission considers the unseating of a champion of the world with a 5 to 7 shot a defense of a title the suie is indeed a joke.

It would say that this is about the price that will be laid against Abie Bain in his fight with Smacksie Maxie Rosenbloom. And yet I wouldn't lay it myself.

I would rather take it. The very fact that the match was made indicates me to give Abie Bain some kind of a chance, and you can make of that statement whatever you please.

'Y' TEAM PICKED TO BEAT B. U.

For the first time in several years, Springfield will be an overwhelming favorite to defeat Boston University when the two elevens clash at Nickerson Field, Weston, Saturday.

The two teams have always been very evenly matched, but this fall Coach Reinacker has an exceptional team as the Gymnasts have proven in their four games to date.

The only team to defeat Springfield this season was Harvard and despite their loss, the Gymnasts looked very impressive at the Stadium.

In the other games, Rothacker's pupils easily defeated East Stroudsberg 29 to 0, Lebanon Valley 20 to 0, and as a windup defeated the Kingsley Field eleven 33 to 0.

Centered around Tommy Owl, the Gymnasts have a tricky offense. They are making use of the lateral and also have an effective passing game. If their aerial attack fails, the visitors will have powerful line plungers and a tricky broken field runner in Owl, a full blooded Indian.

Springfield is also strong on the defense. Harvard has been the only team to score on them this year. The backbone of their defense is in Thompson, who is one of the best small college centers in the country.

As opposition, the Terriers have little to offer. Their triple threat, Pinkham, will be on the bench and "Whitey" Clem is still being bothered by a bad shoulder which may keep him out of Saturday's game.

Dilboy Post Opens Tomorrow Night

Berlenbach and Delaney Made Fortunes With Title

The value of any title depends largely upon the field of competition. Sometimes the light heavyweight title has been worth a lot of money to the holder, again—as in the present case—it has been of little value.

Jack Root was the first claimant back in 1903, and Young Gardiner beat him on the claim. Bob Fitzsimmons was next, then Jack Dillon and Battling Levinsky, and none of these found the title any gold mine.

M. Georges Carpentier, the Lily of France, made it a stepping stone to big money. Tommy Gibbons, Jack Dempsey, but Battling Siki, the singular Senegalese, who licked Carpentier, didn't hold it long enough to make it pay.

Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney both made fortunes mainly because they had each other to fight.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 22 (AP)—Stanley Pominak, 22, of this city, died today from injuries received in a football game here two weeks ago.

Pominak was playing in the backfield for the Hadwig's church team in a game against the Wilmington Panthers, when he received several fractured vertebrae in his spine.

McKenney to Start Team of Subs Against Dayton

ONLY 2 VETS MAY PLAY SATURDAY

Boston College football fans need not be surprised if Joe McKenney starts an entirely new team against the Dayton Flyers next Saturday at Fenway Park.

[illegible] at the Heights with half of the regulars laid up with injuries and the rest pretty well used up after two strenuous games, a complete shakeup in the squad seems the logical thing for the coaches to do.

That this is the intention of McKenney is being quite clearly hinted at the Heights where Joe has a second string lineup which contains only two regulars running through the plays for the coming game.

The two veterans are Billy Boehner, the sophomore quarterback and Chesan Ant, a the Salem speed [illegible] one of the outstanding backs in the East last fall and recognition on many of the All-American selections.

Boehner has been the initial choice for the signal barker's job all season, beating out George Colbert, who has been bothered by a trick knee. He has been running the team like a veteran, calling the plays like an oldtimer and kicking with the best.

Marr and Ryder Will Also Start in Backfield

The other two backs are Jack Marr and Joe Ryder. The latter is a sophomore who starred for Bill Kelliher's freshman eleven a year ago and has been going fine on the varsity. Joe is one of the most conscientious players on the squad, always runs hard and never gives up. When he stops it's because he's down, off his feet, with two or three opponents on top of him. Joe is a triple threat man, a clever and runs interference much in the manner of Kelley, the varsity fullback. In case the latter is not sent in at the start of the game, Ryder is the logical choice for the position.

With Bud Gorman permanently out George O'Connell will step in to the vacant right guard berth. George prepped at Dorchester high under Bill Prendergast, and although he may not have the ability of the injured Gorman, he knows how to play his position and will prove a source of strength to the newcomers.

Even Andere Anderson is beginning to show the results of three hard games in a row, and with Harry Downes once more rounding into his oldtime shape, he may be given a rest on Saturday. Downes has been out of the lineup nearly all fall, having suffered a broken ankle just before school opened. But now that he has returned and is ready for regular duty again, after a few minutes' play in the last two games the center situation is much better than it has been for a [illegible]

HUB BOY AT END FOR GREEN

[illegible] running guards a great advantage in the Dartmouth offense. Also, they are bookers of wonderful ends, being rated [illegible] scorers [illegible] here.

Two years ago Jeffman captained his freshman team but because of financial troubles he was [illegible] to resign from college at Cambridge. He returned a year ago but was ineligible and is now a member of the sophomore class.

Dartmouth Is Pointing for Yale, Not Harvard

Despite the precaution Dartmouth is undergoing this week the Green is not pointing particularly for Harvard. Instead they are [illegible] ing the Yale game their real objective. The Green hopes to be able to take Harvard in stride and then hit the team, to top form next week for the game over whom the Indians have never scored a victory.

Harvard was anxious to stage a game between its B team and the Dartmouth scrubs on Friday but Jack Cannell informed Eckie Clark that injuries had eaten into his varsity squad to such an extent that he only had a couple of ends available and therefore could not agree to this game.

Harvard was disappointed over the Cannell decision, for their scouts report that there are about 88 players on the Green squad, and therefore they are at a loss to understand why Cannell would not agree to send about 30 scrubs [illegible] Cambridge early Friday morning [illegible] game with the Harvard second.

Whichever player wins most games wins the tournament and earns the right to engage the Southeastern sectional titlist at Reading, Pa., on Oct. 29 the winner of [illegible] for the world championship tournament which will be run in December.

The Rego-Seaback match looms as a regular 14-hit. The former [illegible] existing Carl Leighton a popular choice to win. Seaback was given a great tussle by Midway New York State champ, and thanks to an unfinished winning break of 31 balls, the Hub entrant is ready for further competition.

THROAT DOCTORS pick OLD GOLD

in PUBLIC TEST of 4 leading Cigarettes

By Ripley, Himself

"Believe it or not... Here's real authority. Registered physicians, specializing in the care of the nose and throat! Doctors who see every day the ill-effects of cigarettes that are too harsh, too raw, too irritating to delicate membranes.

"I picked the Doctors as taste-testers because they just naturally judge cigarettes for their throat-ease.

"This was to be a taste-test... but I knew every doctor would instinctively rate the four cigarettes on their smoothness and throat-comfort as well as their flavor.

"Believe it or not... these registered physicians, without knowing what brand they were choosing... with all names concealed... picked OLD GOLD by the decisive ratio of 2 to 1.

"I'm getting used to amazing OLD GOLD victories ... but I'll admit this one would be hard to believe if I hadn't personally counted the votes. A Certified Public Accountant also audited the score."

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, HERE'S THE FINAL SCORE! "I certify that an audit of the complete and final results of the Ripley taste test conducted with Throat Specialists gave OLD GOLD 50%, Brand X 25%, Brand Y 0% and Brand Z 25%." Signed, J. S. M. Goodloe, Certified Public Accountant. Above you see the Throat Doctors actually making the test. In circle at the left, Ripley and nurse checking one Doctor's vote.

"Why I changed to Chipso"

Mrs. R. L. S.—
"Johnny's blouses used to have that 'washed-out' look

—now they keep their color." Yes—Chipso keeps colors fresher because Chipso suds are rich, not strong. It's true that strong soaps get your wash clean—but then they take out more than dirt. They give colored clothes that washy washy look and they're hard on fabrics, too. Chipso—in flake or new granule form—soaks dirt free—safely!

Mrs. C. K.—
"My hands stay nicer now"

If you've been using a strong soap for your dishes, try Chipso for a week. You'll be surprised to see how much smoother your hands get, and how much pleasanter dishwashing can be. Chipso's rich suds soak grease and food off dishes in a hurry. A swish or two—and your dishes are clean!

Would you like a quicker soap?

Try Chipso Granules—

Shorten up your washday and dishwashing with these new Chipso Granules. Quick? Just try them! They're wonderful tiny soap dots—white as snow—safe for hands and colors—and you should see the work they do! They foam up instantly into the richest suds you ever used—even in lukewarm water. They soak dirt out of clothes, grease off dishes—safely. Something new!

Mrs. J. C. S., Jr.—
"Chipso Granules are wonderful! At last a hard-working soap that doesn't need hot water to dissolve."

The new Chipso Granules plus lukewarm water give rich Chipso suds instantly. Very convenient for soaking clothes—you can use your water just as it comes from the faucet.

Granules are "marvelous for the woman who's in a hurry, and aren't we all?" says a letter from Mrs. Pauline Krueger.

Mrs. B. S.—
"My clothes have a sweeter, fresher odor now"

When you open the big blue box Chipso Flakes or Chipso Granules smell so fresh and clean you know that your Chipso-washed clothes will have a sweet fresh odor. There's another reason too—Chipso suds rinse out much more easily and quickly—so there's no soapy odor behind. Just the lovely, sweet fragrance of perfectly clean, soap-free clothes.

Goldies' Men Given Time to Pray

CHAPTER XXII.

SEVEN GAME men stood against the wall of Tony Gorio's camouflaged stable. All yellow killers, they could die white, these polyglot scums of the slums. The laws of all decent humankind they held in hot hatred and cold contempt. But they worshipped their own distorted traditions of perverted honor.

Facing them, their executioners were of the same breed.

All alike glanced with loathing at Cranky, the would-be traitor, who still lay huddled on the cement floor, doomed to end that way, an ignominious heap. Monk's the blood dripping from his battered mouth, spat at the gang's disgrace.

Time to Pray

"Him an' Chimp!" he undertoned sidewise to One-Eye. "He would o' turned up foddin an' Chimp ratted on us all—he tipped off the hangout—if I could live long enough to——"

"Shut up," snapped Gleason "I give youse time to pray, not to squawk. Get to it. This typewriter's heavy an' I'm gettin' tired up."

Monk smiled with a sneer. Then he rubbed his right hand on the leg of his trousers and stuck it out to One-Eye, at his side.

"So long," he said. "I guess we better shake hands once! arsine'—Gleason won't mind."

Solemnly they all gripped moist unsteady hands, each with the other.

"We're on the spot, fellers," said Monk. "We're gettin' it for what none of us done. We can all go to the gates o' wherever we're goin' wit' a doin' oath that none of us had a hand in croakin' Kinky King . . . but Gleason says we got to go — an' he's handlin' the typewriter this trip . . . well, in this racket we all got to go . . . every one o' them bloodlines there'll get his — an' maybe they won' even get time to pray. We got a break — we got time to pray . . . let's pray."

One by one they dropped to their knees. Some clasped their hands together, others cupped hands over their eyes. All muttered earnestly. Ray, the chauffeur, intoned aloud the only prayer that he knew—his boyhood "Now I lay me——"

Several of the executioners took off their hats, and all looked nervous and touched—touched not with sympathy or remorse, but moved by the presence of men talking to God—to God whom they would soon look in the face.

Monk was down on one knee. He shaded from bloody and battered countenance with his right hand. His mumbled monosyllables.

The scene grew intermittent as the armed murderers, who stood in disorderly formation, making an irregular semi-circle behind Gleason, who was at the fore, not letting the angle of his machine gun drop even during the last pleas to heaven.

Lit Cigarette

Monk broke the tenuity of the situation.

With a profound inhalation that could be nothing but "Amen" he lifted his face, dragged up the foot of the leg on which he knelt, and stood erect.

He fumbled in a pocket and brought out a cigarette. In another he found a match, lit it, flipped the match half the length of the room. He sucked at his smoke, smoothed it, blew out clouds. His jumpy eyes peppered Gleason and the murder-mob behind him.

"So youse had to do it in p'lice cars an' p'lice harness," he sneered "workin' with the cops pers'! I hope youse all get the same square deal youse give us . . . I'm ready."

One by one the Gorios were using.

Chip Hummell was the last still on his knees. He was praying frantically.

"Come on," called Monk. "If what you said a'ready ain't enough, no matter what you say won't get you nothin' . . . come on—we got to go—let's go."

Hummell finished out his invocation. As he came to his feet he opened his eyes and seemed self conscious because everyone was looking at him, as though he had been caught, alone, in some boyish or bobbish deed. He braced his shoulders and flattened his broad back against the brick.

"All right," he said throatily. "I—I won' hold up the nerve" "Secretary" Gleason, conceived in gin, born in sin, nursed on blood was tough. He had plotted the death of many a man before and carried it out with a serious concentration that had no room for shame or sentiment. It was his business. But never before had he called on himself for anything quite as grim and grisly as this piece of business.

Admired Them

It was one thing to take a sucker or a traitor for a ride, press the nozzle of an automatic into his belly and pull a little jigger . . . it was another to waylay an auto, cut in on it, poke the sprayer of a type-

SERGT. TIERNAN GETS AN OFFER

In these days of police transfers and police shakeups, another loomed today when Sergt. Francis M. Tiernan of Division 4 was told he could have a job in Australia.

Sergt. Tiernan took just eight minutes in municipal court to clearly explain the arrest of John Cataldo and Benjamin Negro of Charlestown in a liquor raid at 812 Washington st., South End.

At its conclusion Judge Thomas Dowd introduced a visitor sitting with him as "J. G. Black, Esq., J. P., of Great Britain, continent of Europe, United States of America, Java and Japan and of the city court of Melbourne, Australia." He is traveling through America observing court procedure.

"My visitor is a visiting magistrate from Australia. He says you are a good officer and would like to take you back to Australia with him," Judge Dowd told the sergeant.

The latter was too nonplussed to reply, but smiled his appreciation without accepting the offer. The defendants were fined $100 each and sentenced to three months each. Both appealed.

Youth Says He Lied About His Pals Being Burglars

They were his pals, but Edmund Szrejna, 18, of Maryland st., Dorchester, told big fibs about them, he admitted today in Fields Corner police station.

As a result, Theodore Iwanowski, 18, of Woodward st., South Boston, and Vincent Tratsky, 18, of Dorchester ave., South Boston, were cleared of the false stigma of being burglars and bandits and were released.

Szrejna, in his story, declared the three were involved in 10 burglaries and two store holdups, but discrepancies were found in his story after the other two had been taken into custody.

Then he admitted he had lied because he wanted to be sent away again. In Dorchester Court, Szrejna was found guilty of having brass knuckles in his possession. The case was filed, but he was ordered back to Shirley School, where he was on parole.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

Ten Women Numbered Among Group Sworn in by Clerk John Cronin

The attorney's oath was administered today in Supreme Court to 201 embryo men lawyers and 10 women, the class being one of the most distinguished of any for a number of years.

When Miss Marguerite H. Tracy of Taunton took the oath, administered by Clerk John F. Cronin in the presence of Supreme Court Justice Henry P. Sherman, she completed her family of five in a legal way.

Her father, John B. Tracy, former mayor of Taunton, was admitted to the bar in 1897; her mother, Mrs. Florence A. Tracy, was admitted in 1928, and her sister, Mrs. Florence A. Revelle, of Bayside, L. I., and brother, Edward B. Tracy, are both attorneys.

Also in the class was William H. Lewis, Jr., son of the former Harvard football star and former assistant United States attorney.

Another member was Elliot M. Ballen, Harvard honor student, whose father, Samuel L. Ballen, is a noted New York attorney.

Richard H. Billy, who for a number of years connected with the Taunton Gazette, was admitted with the class but he declared he will stick to newspaper work and merely studied law because he wished to learn its ramifications in connection with his newspaper work.

In addition to Miss Tracy, the other girls sworn in were Marguerite M. Broderick, Elizabeth P. Crawford, Elizabeth M. Curry, Constance E. Dowd, Ruth C. Hall, Mary M. Hennings, Mary L. Lambe, Lillian Serkin and Florence C. Barrett.

Originally there were 224 men and women who passed the bar examination in September, but only 211 took the oath.

He was held as a suspicious person for officers of the Milk st. station on whose division Landry said the men robbed him of $2500 after he had withdrawn that amount in order to win a $200 wager that he had that sum of money in the bank.

THREE RESCUED IN LYNN FIRE

The fire, which caused $1000 damage, is believed to have started from an overheated stove in the Gershaw Hardware Co. store on the first floor.

Barking by "Brownie," their Boston terrier, awakened Mr. and Mrs. Leon Michard on the second floor, and they ran upstairs through smoke and aroused Mr. and Mrs. Morris Adams and two children, Francis, five, and Mary, two.

Motorcycle Officers Polo and Kane, who had seen smoke, arrived and carried the children to the street, the others following.

Then it was recalled that Daniel Sullivan, who slept in a room back of the store, had not been seen. The officers rushed in and carried him from bed to the street.

'SQUATTER' ROW IN MEDFORD

A wave of protest against a Medford "squatter" brought the appointment of an aldermanic committee today to oust Tony Gizzi, owner of 1800 square feet of land in Riverside ave.

Gizzi lives in a one-story shack near the Fellsway, built on a permit for a toolhouse that was later changed to one for a vegetable house.

Building development in the section has been retarded on account of the unsightly shack, neighbors complained.

Building Commissioner Frank Blodgett, who issued the permit, said his duty ended at the issuance of the permit and it was not within the province of his office to investigate conditions.

The Board of Health said it was powerless to act in the absence of any complaints and the committee appeared to City Solicitor Jaspar N. Johnson who gave them his opinion the building violates the zoning laws.

BOSTON DEBUTANTES RATED A, B, C IN SNAPPY CLASSIFICATION

138 ON LIST WITH LIVE COMMENT

Roll May Be Extended All the Way Down Alphabet, Writer Hints

Classification of the 1930 crop of debutantes, much as the 1930 crop of apples or pumpkins would be classified, only more extensively, is not included in list of right things, in the collective opinion of Boston society.

Consequently, considerable astonishment is being expressed over the attempt of the American Tatler and Sketch to put the debutantes of Boston Baltimore and Philadelphia in alphabetical order which it is threatened, may extend as far as the letter Z.

Some of the 138 Boston maidens are very flattering notice in the process while others are not so fortunate.

Snappy personal characterizations accompany each name in the four classes, which include not only residents of Boston and suburbs but also some who have their residence elsewhere.

HIGHEST RATINGS

Class A, the highest rating, is reserved for the debutante who, himself "Audacious," explains in the preface to go as far down the alphabet as Z if it is found necessary. However, all below the grade of C are grouped as a whole in this issue.

"Audacious" recognizes other claims beside social prominence. Personal popularity, family connections, and even the prospective entertainments of the debs are used in the classification.

A large number are grouped in classes B and C although a casual survey of these grades brings to light some who are evidently entitled to a grade A rating.

The author alleges to be actuated neither by the law of supply and demand nor by the so-termed "registered" families, yet in this last instance it is conceded that a debutante's background is naturally that of her forebears.

Not content with placing the debutantes "smartly ane rightly where they belong," the author goes even farther and offers to answer any three questions submitted and threatens to let the chips fall where they may as that "society may be graded like milk."

Following is the A classification for Boston:

GRADE "A"

Harriette Blake—Conservative, exclusive.

Barbara Bremer—The proper things for Barbara will be prescribed.

Katherine Burrage—Has been groomed for the occasion.

Hails Brown—An old, staid family.

Helen Cabot—Very sweet and very real.

Marion DaNon—Third presented and more to come.

Mary Emery—Among the foremost.

Louise Farley—Knows all the worthwhiles.

Griselda and Angela Forbes—Are real people.

Pauline Forbes—A Cabot; that's sufficient.

Evelyn Hollinsworth—They always do the right thing.

Fanny Homans—She will be properly introduced unquestionably.

Lorna Livermore—Fits here very nicely.

Charlotte Lyman—Smart and original.

Alice Means—Means are classified well do things handsomely.

Martha Means—Well they belong.

Elizabeth Mason—Will have some nice parties given for her.

Sara Palfrey—One of a quintet.

Susan Robins—Unassuming.

Cary Walker—The militarystride.

Classifier Grades Them All as "A's"

SARAH PALFREY, termed in the grading of society girls in the American Tattler and Sketch "one of a quintet," is one of America's leading amateur tennis stars. She keeps fit and in "Grade Triple A" form, it might be said by her friends.

4 Rail Unions With 40,000 Members Back Ely

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY.

One of the most important "breaks" in the Massachusetts political campaign came today when the four railroad brotherhoods announced their decision to support Joseph B. Ely, Democratic candidate for Governor.

The brotherhoods form one of the most influential groups of organized labor with a membership understood to be more than 40,000 in this State.

No preference was expressed between the senatorial candidates, Marcus A. Coolidge and William M. Butler, by the brotherhoods.

WHAT BUTLER SAYS

Butler, however, is waging a determined battle for labor's support. In an attack upon Marcus A. Coolidge, his Democratic opponent, Butler today referred to the troubles Coolidge is alleged to have had with labor and to the removal of his shops to Senaca Falls, N. Y.

"I have had a long and intimate connection with business," Butler said: "I have built up a considerable industry in Massachusetts. I have had the temptation under adverse conditions in Massachusetts to remove my plants to other states where conditions as to labor have perhaps been more inviting, but I have put faith in Massachusetts and I have continued my interests here in Massachusetts, and I have not removed my plants to other states whatever the temptation."

A big anti-prohibition rally under the auspices of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform will be held tonight in Symphony Hall.

Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, defeated in the Republican senatorial primary by William M. Butler, will be on the platform, it is understood.

Should Draper appear and speak it will be his first public utterance since his dramatic denunciation of the Republican platform immediately after the primary.

MRS. AMES TO SPEAK

Draper has so far refused to endorse Butler and, according to his close friends, has no intention of doing so. But he is friendly to Governor Allen, who is running a more or less independent campaign.

The scheduled speakers for tonight's affair are Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames of North Easton, chairman of the state organization; Mayor Curley, former Sen. James W. Wadsworth of New York, Mrs. Carroll Miller of Pittsburgh and William Phillips former minister to Canada.

The Ely-Coolidge Business Men's League organized this week by Joseph A Maynard lieutenant to former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has arranged a noon rally for tomorrow in Faneuil Hall. Former Mayor Andrew J. Peters will preside.

The speakers will include Mr. Ely, Mr. Coolidge, Senator Walsh and Mrs. Miller of Pennsylvania.

NON-JEWS AID CHARITY FUND

Many non-Jews have sent in voluntary contributions to the annual maintenance drive of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies. It was announced by those directing the campaign.

The drive reached the $311,520 mark yesterday. Noonday luncheons will be held every day of this week when the reports of the committees will be heard.

At a dinner to the Shoe and Leather Team, of which A. A. Bloom is captain, at the Hotel Statler, $26,385 was subscribed toward the team's $63,000 quota in the $700,000 campaign of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies. The 30 leaders of the industry heard addresses by Henry Penn, campaign chairman; Dr. Charles F. Withsky, director and A. A. Ginsberg, president of the Beth Israel Hospital; Ben M. Selekman, executive director of the associated; Sol Agoos and Abraham Shapiro.

Arthur Stern, chairman of the insurance team, issued a challenge to any team working in the campaign to show the largest percent gain in subscriptions and new subscribers and this challenge was immediately taken up by Samuel Markel, chairman of the attorney's team.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22—Fifi Dorsay with that naughty twinkle in her eye and an accent that wins a place for her on the screen, has had a play specially bought for her. 'Tis a mystery melodrama by Earl Derr Biggers called "Charlie Chan Carries On."

Winfield Sheehan, who personally picks the Fox stories, decided that here was a vehicle that would give Fifi Dorsay the right opportunity. Fifi has gone up since she has captivated so many large sized movie audiences. Hamilton McFadden, who has lately taken the house on the hill formerly occupied by Bee Lillie, will direct. That reminds me I keep saying that Mr. McFadden was returning East when suddenly came the story of the Dorsay picture and the house on the hill well, just goes to show that half of the Hollywood rumors are only gossip.

IT IS ONLY WHEN we hear about some big New York success and we know so little about it that we realize the many miles between Los Angeles and New York. Film folk are commuting so constantly we keep getting reports of what is happening on Broadway, but somehow, news that is just routine to us never registers as well as things we see. However, "The Torch Song" by Kenyon Nicholson, seems to be one of the New York plays everyone is talking about. Metro-Goldwyn has already purchased it and it is very likely to be Joan Crawford's next picture after "Dance, Fools, Dance." M. G. M. is making hay while the sun shines with the popular Joan. She has been among along graduate now she is certainly one of their big money makers and the man who said money talks was no imbecile.

THE OLD SILVER LINING in the cloud is shining again, for Constance Cummings who had good reason to see the dark side when she found herself out of a job as Ronald Colman's leading lady. Not only is she starring in a picture for Columbia "The Criminal Code," to be exact, but Harry Cohn has signed her on a five-year contract. Miss Cummings didn't do so well as the Goldwyn studios, but she is going ahead in leaps and bounds at Columbia.

WHISPERS OF A beautiful test made of Hope Williams at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios are being broadcast in film circles. Miss Williams is the smart society girl who put pink teas and social affairs out of her mind to play the leading role in the stage production of "Holiday." She was such a tremendous hit that "Redoubt" was written for her and again she scored.

HOLLYWOOD HAS PROVED too strenuous for Renée Adoree, who came back from the desert after a nervous breakdown. Renee had left for the desert. Too much excitement and a lack of rest, her doctors say. She kept going when she should have been resting, and her condition is now so serious her friends are worried. The only possible chance she has for recovery is to stay in the desert for a year away from all of her social activities. Poor Renee. There has never been any screen actress who was more talented and there seems no one to take her place.

The prize winning show "Girls From the Follies," an Ed Ryan production with Gladys (Youth) Clark, is furnishing entertainment at the Old Howard this week. It will be remembered by burlesque followers that Gladys Clark is noted for skill and grace in the dancing line. For several years before entering burlesque, she was a teacher of dancing and personally trained the present chorus. This is the same show that was awarded the $1000 prize last season by the G. E. Lothrop Theatres Company management and is sure to continue in favor with all Howardites.

BLIND TENOR PLANS DEBUT

A varied program will be offered by the sightless tenor, Giovanni Cerullo in Jordan Hall, on the afternoon of next Sunday, October 26. He will be assisted by the Martino Concert Orchestra, Raffaele Martino, conductor. Mr. Cerullo's program contains many well known arias from operas and pleasing ballads. The orchestra besides accompanying the soloist, will play 'Barber of Seville'' Overture and 'Liszt's 'Hungarian Rhapsody,'' No. 2. There are also several numbers for instrumental ensemble.

Giovanni Cerullo

Mr. Cerullo lost his sight six years ago while experimenting with chemicals. Since then he has devoted his time to the study of music. The coming concert will be his Boston debut.

Film Who's Who

Born in Bucharest, Rumania, and arriving in this country without knowledge of English, Edward G. Robinson, featured in "East Is West" now at the new B. F. Keith's, has become one of the most distinguished stars of the talking screen Originally, Robinson intended to become a lawyer, or a teacher and to this end he attended New York City College and later Columbia. During his college career, however, he became interested in dramatics, with the result that upon his graduation he turned toward the stage. His first professional work was with a New York stock company and almost immediately won his debut but he moved to Broadway, where he played leading roles from 1915 until 1929, when he went West with "The Racket," in which he played a gangster.

E. R. Robinson

His ability as a character actor was immediately recognized. Hollywood has insisted on casting him as a "heavy" to date and among his screen successes have been "The Night Rode," "A Lady to Love," "Outside the Law" and now his latest Universal picture, "East Is West," in which he gives a superb portrayal of Charlie Yong, half-caste ruler of San Francisco's Chinatown.

THEATER MEN GREET STARS AT LUNCHEON

By JACK GOLDSTEIN
Of the Public Scollay

That was the greeting little Peggy Eames of the famous "Our Gang" comedies had for the assembled prominent theater men of New England at the first luncheon of the Allied Theaters of Massachusetts at the Hotel Bradford.

There were 100 theater managers, owners, executives of film companies and their associates at the gathering, which in the words of Maurice Wolf, genial manager of the New England Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer exchange here, provided the boys with an opportunity to eat together instead of alone.

As the luncheon progressed it became evident that it was not merely an opportunity for the boys to eat together, for George Giles, president of the association, had three surprises for the "boys" in the persons of three movie stars appearing in person at local theaters.

THE FIRST GUEST of honor to be introduced was a big favorite with the boys even before he made his little speech, for most of them had made money with his pictures. When Charles Ruggles was introduced, he was the recipient of a hearty welcome. Charlie had a show to make so his remarks were brief.

Next came little Peggy Eames. After her short little announcement of not being able to speak, she did so inside such stars as Helen Kane, Trixie Friganza and Lenore Ulric, to the very evident pleasure of the gathering.

It might be mentioned here, that after glancing around the room, and seeing what a fine and large representation was present, a great deal of credit should be given J. J. McGuiness for his untiring efforts to make the luncheon the success that it was.

GILES WAS SEEN scanning the room as if searching for someone, after Miss Eames' little offering, and when he next arose and announced Lawrence Wolf as the next speaker it was evident that he had found his party. After Wolf protested that "they won't even let me eat" and put in some great advertising for Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, Ken Murray was presented and proved to be a great big, willing client of stories and witticisms. If anyone is looking for the proper party to put a little life in a luncheon party, he need look no further than Ken Murray, he certainly can entertain.

The party broke up shortly afterwards but not before it was unanimously acclaimed as a great success in every sense of the word.

Sophie Braslau in Concert at Statler

Sophie Braslau, contralto, gave a program of songs at the Statler ballroom yesterday afternoon. The concert, which was for the benefit of the New England Home for Little Wanderers, was attended by a large and cordial audience.

In addition to six masterpieces by Schubert, Miss Braslau sang from the works of Gluck, Handel, Ravel, Debussy, and Sedero. A final group included two Negro spirituals arranged by Johnson, and songs by Kathleen Manning and Hallett Gilberte.

HEARST FILM SHOWS R-101 WRECK

The first scenes of the R-101 tragedy, in which several high officials of the British government perished, are shown in this week's issue of Hearst Metrotone News, now being shown at Loew's State. Pictures of the departure of the dirigible from Cardington, England, are first screened, immediately followed by scenes of the debris and wreckage. A short talk by one of the seven survivors tells of the terrible catastrophe.

The popularity of William Randolph Hearst is shown by the tremendous reception accorded him in Chicago. After being introduced by Mayor Thompson at Soldier's Field, Mr. Hearst speaks and his voice comes through perfectly.

Also included in the News review of this week are the following: Old Ironsides taking to water in Boston Harbor for the first time in years; Australians witnessing a new high jump mark of 7 ft. 3 in., set by the famous horse, Pugong; and several thrilling moments in the Notre Dame-Navy football game.

In the issue of Hearst Metrotone News which is now being presented at Loew's Orpheum, perhaps the most interesting event pictured is the great preparedness exhibition staged on the Pacific Coast by Uncle Sam's army and navy. There is also a series of thrilling "war" maneuvers, staged for the purpose of calling attention to the coming nation-wide celebration of "Navy Day."

Local interest is attracted to the unusually picturesque scenes taken off Gloucester, which show the Gertrude L. Thebaid, pride of old New England, as she sails majestically across the finish line ahead of the Canadian Bluenose. Then Metrotone carries the audience to Germany to watch a thoroughbred race.

TATTOOMARKS PUT ON STAR EACH DAY

The picturesque tattoo marks that John Barrymore boasts as Capt. Ahab in "Moby Dick," now in its last days at the Olympia and Uptown, caused makeup experts no small amount of trouble until an assistant suggested the modern way of putting them on, instead of in.

Naturally, it was quite out of the question to actually take the tattooing needle to the skin of the star. Such marks have always been painted on by experts in miniature work each day during the makeup period. This has always proved a slow and painstaking process.

It took less than an hour to put on the half dozen very effective marks that Barrymore wears in "Moby Dick." The bright idea—in reality used by almost every studio in the business, consists of rubber stamps of the designs of the tattoo marks and making an imprint—as Andy would say—in colored inks each day.

Argentina in Dances At Symphony

Society Turns Out for Recital by Noted Star; Fashion Parade in Foyer

LA ARGENTINA WAS again an incomparable delight to her vast audience at Symphony Hall, last evening. Such a combination of delicacy and virility! Her costumes were superb, crinolines, Mexican, Spanish and Goyesque. It was thrilling to watch her little feet flash like tiny lights across the stage to the click of her famous castanets. La Argentina has mastered the art of expression as well as the art of the dance, her facial miming is almost as miraculous as her terpsichore. She is a magnetic personality

Women Tell of Police Work

Two State Officers Speak at Massachusetts Civic League Meeting

By NANCY BREWSTER

Every womanly art is called into play in the performance of their daily duties by the first two women State police officers appointed in the United States.

These officers, Miss L. C. Caldwell and Mrs. Mary S. Ramadell, reporting publicly for the first time since her appointment to the Massachusetts State Police force last April, told the Massachusetts Civic League yesterday that they had fitted into the force without the smallest difficulty.

She described her fear of how a woman officer would be accepted by her "brothers" in the state [illegible]

[illegible] programs to which these women are assigned are mostly those of social welfare, she explained. [illegible] an offender of her sex in a welfare case or one for court action.

"All through our work we have found the state police officers to be gallant gentlemen where women are concerned," Miss Caldwell reported. "And whenever intimate questions had to be asked, the men officers were always absent until they were finished. Our big brothers, as we like to call them, frequently ask our advice and help on cases they are working on and they make us feel of great value in many situations.

ARRESTED AS LAST RESORT

"The skipper, Capt. Beaupre, has a strict rule that only as a last resort should youth be arrested and thereby acquire a court record," Miss Caldwell stated. "In the 22 state police stations throughout the state this team spirit prevails, each trooper believing his station to be the best. We were welcomed in every member and made to feel one of themselves."

Mrs. Ramadell told of specific cases on which she had worked driving 256 miles once in winter to Massachusetts to take a young girl to a clinic for medical attention. She also paid high tribute to the warm welcome given the women officers by their colleagues.

League of Women Voters to Hear Florence Harrison

In experimenting with methods of adult education in citizenship the League of Women Voters discovered that interesting government can be secured only by pinning much information on current event, Miss Florence Harrison asserted at the luncheon meeting of the league at the Copley plaza yesterday.

Miss Harrison, who was former field secretary of the national organization, reviewed the past ten years of effort in converting the woman suffrage machine into an educational instrument

"Women are not interested in a general theory and so we turned to the radio and pioneered in broadcasting political information," Miss Harrison said. "We have an opportunity to organize our audience through an arrangement with the American Library Association which lists books, available at all public libraries, dealing with the topics we broadcast."

She told how the League of Women Voters has become an important publishing house, having put out 124 books in the last two years, dealing with such public questions as taxation, and control of public utilities and education.

Oldest Member of Y. W. C. A. Guest at Alumnae Day Tea

Mrs. Sarah Jane Butterick, 87, the oldest member of the Boston Y. W. C. A., who once served as its finance secretary, is among the guests being entertained today at its "alumnae day" tea.

Mrs. Butterick, who lives at 45 Gordon st., Allston, was among the first to accept the invitation of the present board of directors to past board members to inspect the old headquarters at 40 Berkeley st.

Mrs. Howard P. Converse is in charge of alumnae day, which is marked by a formal tea and reception at the new building on Clarendon st. and a visit afterward to the house at 40 Berkeley st. One hundred and fifty invitations were sent out for this event, a feature of "Know Your Y. W. C. A." week. ers."

Greek Classics in Evening Mode

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WHDH every Tuesday and Thursday at 11 a. m.)

IT IS a Grecian key that opens the way to the loveliest fall formal fashions. The trend toward the classic Grecian silhouette which was ushered in with the higher waistline has now become a reality. The unbroken lines, classic simplicity and graceful drapery that made the subtle charm of costuming for the beautiful women of ancient Greece, now enters a modern setting with as great success

YOU SIMPLY can't help but feel graceful and dignified in these evening draperies. You feel like treading with the same rhythmic movement that animates the design of the frock. The couturiers have gone quite wild over the idea—with the most entrancing results.

A FROCK of surpassing simplicity is pictured here—a Chanel model in chiffon toned deep coral color. The bodice and skirt top are finely tucked; the curving lines of the yoke in plain chiffon are echoed in the belt, marked by two roses in coral tones. Sashing, skirt fullness escapes from deep points.

WING DRAPERIES [illegible] add grace to an evening gown, or variously adjusted, may become a scarf or covering, the arms may transform the frock into a hostess gown, for late afternoon or informal dining. A versatile costume, to be sure, with soft, flu d fullness in every line.

Timely Hints for Keeping Milady's Wave Beautiful

Charm Lies in Gloss of Hair

THE NEXT time you have a finger wave act ask the operator to spray a little brilliantine over your hair just before turning on the dryer. Of such simple tricks is the ultimate in hair beauty attained.

Josephine Hutchinson

You all know that brilliantine not only gives a lovely lustre to the hair, but you probably don't know that it holds the ends in place, keeping the contours of the coiffure smartly groomed with no additional effort.

There are various methods of using brilliantine. Some put just a little on a hair brush and past it lightly over the hair. Others spray the brilliantine on after the hair is dry and then distribute it with the comb when the wave is combed out. But the spray for applying brilliantine is becoming more popular all the time, because it not only distributes the brilliantine evenly, but it is the most reliable method for getting the smallest possible amount on the hair.

Too much brilliantine makes the hair appear oily, causing the hairs to stick together, instead of letting them fall softly. Therefore, only a trifle is needed to accomplish the purpose and when more than that little gets on the hair is beauty is dimmed, rather than accentuated.

In addition to having brilliantine sprayed over the hair just after the wave is set, you will find that spraying a little on the hair each morning will help to preserve the wave for a much longer time than if the use is omitted.

I seem to have "keeping the wave in good condition" on my mind these days, but this summer when less formal coiffures are acceptable it isn't as important that the trim outline of the wave be preserved as it is during the Fall and Winter seasons.

I wonder how many of you have gone back to your sleeping caps as a means of keeping your wave from becoming flattened at night? I've unearthed mine along with other Fall and Winter beauty accessories.

There are two popular types of these cap arrangements for keeping the hair in place. One is a crocheted helmet style of silk, resembling a hair net, but much smaller and more attractively shaped. Some of these have little taffeta bands across the forehead and insets at the sides and really are extremely attractive, enhancing one's bedtime appearance instead of detracting from it.

Then there are the net bands which are wound around the head turban fashion and these are most becoming to those women who look well in the turban type of hat. Such a bandage makes excellent protective headcoverings for early morning during the sweeping and dusting period.

Both types of cap come in all shades so that negligees can be matched or complemented with blending colors. They can be had also come in darker shades such as brown.

Either type of cap is washable so that cleanliness can be observed.

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Vat's a good school outfit for the girl or boy who's out of the be class but not yet really a young man or young woman?

In other words, for the in-between, growing stages of from about 10 to 12 years.

We've made some investigations on this interesting subject. And find that first of all, fashionable ringsroom clothes a comfortable, practical and simp

The growing girl sometime presents a difficult problem. Her figure develops irregularities. Her legs suddenly grow long. Her waistline seems to jump five one spot to another. And either has no hips at all or t much of them.

Two outfits we've found over and over again in our investigations of school rooms. They a the growing figure. They simple and appropriate for scho atmosphere. And we've had the sketched below.

Right now it's being worn with linen, cotton or silk crepe blouses. Later, when it's colder, these blouses can be changed for jersey or light flannel.

Adjustable

It's a dress that adjusts well to the changing figure. The belt can be moved up or down. The front can be cut in deep or shallow V's or U's or squares.

Another favorite costume is the suit sketched at the left. The skirt buttons on or is sewed onto the blouse. The jacket is either square cut, as the one in the illustration, or rounded up in below fashion.

Boys' Suits

Practically a uniform for the 12-year-od boy is the combination shown below. Sturdy knickers—tweeds and herringbones preferred—a striped or small figured shirt—striped tie—patterned hose—and comfortable, not-afraid-to-be-stubbed oxfords.

As the weather grows colder, we'll find him with a patterned sweater pulled on over his shirt.

Not much variety to this costume, to be sure—but it's neat, comfortable, and suited to his age.

How to Use Silver at Table

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I I always seem to be ill at ease when out in company and I do not understand the use of silver. Can you tell me just where the steak knife is placed while you are not using it, also where the butter knife is placed?

2. Are the appetizers eaten before the soup?

E. G. S

1. Keep in mind—and this will always help you—that you use the silverpiece in order, beginning with the one farthest from the plate, and "progressing toward the plate.

When you are not using a knife, after you have used it previously, in a course, place it on the rim of your plate. Don't allow its handle to touch the table or cloth. Have a part of the handle and a part of the blade rest on the rim of the plate. In this position it will not be easy to push the knife from the plate.

When you have finished the course, place both your knife and fork in the center of the plate, together, parallel with each other, and with the handles turned slightly to the right. This position again offers the minimum of danger to their being pushed from the plate as the plate is being removed.

Now for the butter spreader. When we set the table we place this on the bread and butter plate, either parallel with the end of the table or parallel with the other silverpieces at the place. After we have used it, we place it diagonally on the bread and butter plate.

2. Yes.

Presenting the Bride in Marriage

DEAR MISS BEECKMAN:

Is the bride's father supposed to give the bride away at an informal church wedding? The wedding is to take place this month.

M. K.

Is the usual custom for the bride's father to present his daughter in marriage, and the fact that the wedding is formal or informal does not make any difference. However, if the bride wishes to omit this part of the ceremony, and if it is not required by the denomination to which she belongs or in whose church she is to be married, she may do so.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

Oven Cooked Dinner Means Whole Meal

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday morning breakfast from Station WHDH

I PROMISED on Monday that I would give you on Wednesday the recipes for the oven cooked dinner menu which I broadcasted and true to my promise here they are.

Of course, you know the feature of these oven cooked dinners is that a whole meal consisting of soup, meat, vegetables and dessert is placed in a heat regulated oven with a temperature wheel set at a low temperature and the whole meal baked all together without any watching, or in an oven in which you are using a portable thermometer.

Martha Lee

A dinner which you are going to serve in the evening can be put in the oven in the early afternoon and leaves you free to go out and make social calls, do shopping, play bridge, or see the new matinee serenely confident that dinner will be all ready to serve when you return home in the late afternoon.

The highlights in Monday's menu were, in Menu No. 1, the Braised Beef with Creamed Baked Potatoes.

BRAISED BEEF

4 or 5 pounds beef
1 tablespoonful salt
1 cupful of boiling water

Put the meat in a roasting pan and place it, uncovered, in the oven. Sear the meat at 450 degrees for 30 minutes. Then remove the meat from the oven, slip a rack underneath the piece of meat and pour 1 cupful of boiling water in the bottom of the pan. Sprinkle the salt over the meat. Cover the roasting pan and bake at 275 degrees for 5 hours, or at 250 degrees for 6 or 8 hours. When the meat is cooked for the desired period of time, remove it from the oven, place it on a hot platter and serve at once.

BREADED BAKED CHICKEN

One dressed chicken (from 6 months to 1 year old) weighing 3½ to 4 pounds

Singe the chicken by holding it over a gas flame. Remove the pin feathers and cut the oilbag from the tail. If the chicken has not been drawn, remove the entrails. Then cut it into pieces and carefully wash each piece. Place the pieces of chicken in a roasting pan provided with a rack. Sprinkle 1 tablespoonful salt over the chicken. Pour 2 cupfuls boiling water in the bottom of the pan. Cover the pan. If the cover of the latter has a valve, open the valve. Place the pan in the oven whose temperature wheel is set at 275 degrees and bake for three hours. Or place the pan in an oven whose temperature wheel is set at 250 degrees and bake four or five hours. When the baking period is completed remove the pan from the oven, and pour the broth from the pan. (Save the broth for making gravy). In order to make the baked chicken more tasty and to make it very pleasing in appearance each piece of chicken may be dipped first into a thin batter and then into bread crumbs.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

She Wants to Find If He Cares

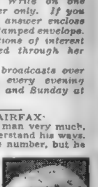
BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily column.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I like a young man very much, but I cannot understand his ways. He has my phone number, but he never calls me up; and when he wishes to take me out he waits for me after school to ask me. He has taken me out many times and on those occasions has treated me very well. But I am not sure he cares for me as I care for him. If he did, don't you think he would call at my home or call me up often? How can I find out if he cares?

SUE JANE.



Beatrice Fairfax.

Dear Sue Jane—It seems to me, as an impartial judge, that your friendship with the schoolmate is progressing very well indeed. I shouldn't be in a hurry things along too rapidly—romances often go on the rocks because the man is too sure of his quarry.

His Intentions Are Serious

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A young man and I have been going together for several years. He is working out of town now, but comes to see me about every two weeks. He has serious intentions, and, although he claims he is not jealous and does not mind if I go out with others, I am afraid he might feel hurt if I accept invitations from other men. What would you advise?

CONSTANT READER.

Dear Reader: It's up to you whether you accept such invitations or not. There is certainly no objection to a girl whose engagement is not announced going out with other young men. Even when an engagement has been announced it is done very often. The difficulty is that young men do not enjoy "playing Santa Claus," as taking out another man's betrothed is called. I should'n make a practice of going out continually, and when I went I'd tell the boy friend about it.

Sweets in the Child's Diet

Sugar Is Needed in Moderation

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

WITH OUR present-day knowledge of nutrition, we must take great care in providing the proper combination of food. We must do this to give our children the best nutrition possible. Among our fancy practices is the tendency of including too much sweet in the diet.

Dr. Copeland

Sugar is an important element in some of the best of our foods. It is always found in fruits. Except in honey, it is rarely found without being combined with certain salts and fibre. To get the benefits of the foods must be carefully chewed and properly mixed with the saliva.

Then it is ready for the gastric juices.

All persons crave sweets, especially children. This is well, because a moderate use of sugar is necessary to meet the needs of the active youngsters.

There is no doubt that many young children are given too much sugar. In the past many baby food formulas were used which contained too much sugar, more than is found in mother's milk. By overfeeding of sweets there is danger that a child's taste may become perverted. Then he will crave more and more sugar.

There are many-sided foods and the one-sided food. The many-sided "protective" foods include cereals, breadstuffs, meat, milk, fruits and vegetables. All these contain the life-giving elements, and, when properly combined they make an ideal food for the growing child, as well as for the adult.

The one-sided food, such as sugar, is all right in its place and in proper quantity, but it must not be taken to the exclusion of the important protective foods. If taken in reasonable quantities, and after the nourishing foods have been eaten, they are good for you and your child.

To be perfectly straightforward on the subject, sugar in excess can only be classed as one-sided food. It is deficient in the necessary proteins, mineral and vitamins which we must have in the diet if we are to have good health. If sugar is taken in the form of candy, or any concentrated form, and used to excess it may prove troublesome.

When a child is given too many sweets, such as candy, jam or chocolate, they interfere with the formation and composition of the saliva. It lessens the power to digest starchy foods. A diet of this sort spoils the appetite for other foods which are far more important to growth, as sugar does not.

Maybe the blind aunt could think of a way. . . . She could ask her to call at the jail. . . . The blind aunt was so wise. . . . She'd know some way to prove suede Gordon to forget . . . get another girl. . . . You shouldn't let a man ruin his life for you, even if he does love you . . . and you love him. . . .

Maybe if he'd get interested in another girl . . . that Mrs. Willoughby . . . Mrs. Willoughby . . . she's too cold and calculating. She'd never really make him happy. . . . And not a girl like Marsha Darrow either. . . . She has such a mean, hard streak. . . . She would have to be someone else . . . someone who would really understand and appreciate him. . . . The blind aunt would think of someone, probably. . . .

And at the thought of the nice girl Miss Maude Moore would find for him, Cathie pressed her face into the pillow and cried quietly, so that no one would hear. She didn't want to disturb the other women in the jail.

Towards morning she awoke. Lay awake, listening . . . straining every nerve to hear the strange night noises . . . Nothing to be afraid of, of course. You're surely safe in a jail! . . . Funny . . . footsteps sounding way off somewhere . . . feet ringing on cement floors . . . ghostly sounding, those footsteps . . . Was somebody coming? No, only some jailer making the rounds . . . Nothing to be afraid of . . . locked in a cell! A cell that how many wretched women have been locked in! Maybe they lay awake nights, afraid too . . . all those other women who were once in this cell . . .

Dreary Prison

This is like the nights in the Farnsworth house . . . hideous, nights they were . . . Queer about houses . . . some make you feel all peaceful and safe and others . . . others don't. . . .

In the house at home the night noises were all nice ones . . . comforting, home-sounding ones . . . Through the partition you could hear the sprogs squeak as Mrs turned over in bed . . . you could listen and hear little Jean's soft, regular breathing. And if there was a scratching at your window you could call, very softly, "Here, kitty, come puss!" and the Hennessys' black Genevieve would leap on the sill and sit there, purring loudly, waiting to be invited to come in and curl up on the quilt beside you. . . .

Even jail is better than the house.

You never heard any comforting, human noises there. Sometimes it was silent as a tomb . . . not even a sound from the street. . . . Never a frog or a cricket in the garden . . . never a familiar, comfortable sound . . . just silence and the creaking, sighing noises there were the voices of the house, that came out of the wood . . . and sometimes the stealthy patter of footsteps in the halls . . . footsteps that stopped when you turned, and melted away into nothing . . . and towards dawn the rain sometimes, pelting down gently . . . a very accompaniment to the distant, squeaky melody of a Chinese flute. . . .

No wonder Mr. Farnsworth was killed in the night . . . a lot went on in that house in the dark, if you only knew what it was . . . and those footsteps belonged to somebody . . . somebody who knew secret hiding places . . .

Cathie's teeth began to chatter, her heart to thud . . . wonder she wasn't killed, too . . . wonder they weren't all found dead. . . .

There she was, thinking about herself again . . . when poor Mr. Farnsworth was dead and buried, and Gordon's heart was just about broken, and Ma. . . . Ma. . . .

But when she thought about Ma, sinking down into a heap on that courtroom floor, what was left of her self-control snapped. . . . She bit into the pillow to stifle the sobs she couldn't keep back, and it didn't do any good, she could hear herself crying . . . crying out loud, crying uncontrollably. . . . Just one more woman weeping in the night, in a cell.

She was too sick to see Gordon when he came, early in the morning. But the matron helped her make herself presentable about noon, and she went in to the visitors' room to talk to him for a few moments, a washed-out wraith of a girl with bleary-circled eyes, and mourning that hung on her dejectedly.

"Well, another day and we ought to have something," he said, with false heartiness.

She laid her pale cheek next to his. "Don't mind too much, dear . . . I don't. . . ."

Sentence Near

And unexpectedly, she broke down, and wept again.

She was thinking of Friday . . . only after tomorrow . . . the day they were going to sentence her . . . and the court . . . and the jail . . . and Gordon at her side her. . . .

Mrs. Evans motioned for him to go.

From an inner pocket he brought out a screw of brown paper, unwound it carefully, and presented her with half a dozen stalks of tuberose China lilies.

"Mr. Moore thinks they'll have Marguerite by tomorrow," she told him. It was suddenly easy to talk. Cheong was someone you could talk to. . . . You had she hadn't known it before . . . in the lonely days in the house . . . he could have helped. . . . She knew that now.

"You think they'll find her, Cheong?"

"Of a certainty."

"But, Cheong, why did she go away like that? She was always so kind, and I needed her so——"

"These are things beyond human understanding."

"I know, but if I could just believe——"

"You will believe. You who are young, in the springtime of life. You will be happy again. Before the green hills turn brown under the summer sun you will have forgotten—he seeing the small room with a yellow hand—much."

Good and Evil

"Not if I'm still here—" Cathie said irrelevantly. The tears of weakness stood in her eyes, but she managed to smile as she said it. . . . Hope. . . . Hope, newborn and weak, but Hope, was in her again. . . .

The old Chinaman was talking. . . . "Things are neither good nor evil. It is only their uses that have these properties. Good things may be the cause of evil. The child becomes ill of eating sweets, the old man who stays watching the full moon through the night has pneumonia, or rheumatism. The beautiful fountain emits poisonous vapors.

"Evil things may do good, foul poisons kill fouler vermin, carrion birds and maggots keep the world clean of offal. Death may prevent misery. Fate puts things in strange places. In an humble way the wise man may emulate fate.

"The physician uses the dried blood of spiders to cure fevers. He uses opium and morphine to prevent pain and shorten misery. The wise man may utilize the malice of fools in order that good may come."

The voice of the old Chinaman died away. Cathie had the feeling that he had forgotten her, that he was talking to himself.

"Good-bye, Catherine Farnsworth," he said suddenly, bowing himself away.

"Good-bye, Cheong."

"Before the green hills turn brown under the summer sun." . . . Maybe it was silly to believe it . . . but she did. . . .

Philadelphia Campaign, 'Buy Now,' Is Timely

Merchants Losing Business Through Poor Stock; Four-Acts' Drama

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Oct. 22—Although this writer could never become hilariously excited over such schemes as "Shoeshine Day" or "Tripe Week," the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce "Buy Now" campaign is timely and thoroughly sensible because America's worst trouble now is psychological. The weakest thing in the country is not the stock market, cotton or wheat or rubber, but the state of mind.

B. C. Forbes

President Philip H. Gadsden's aggressive waging of Philadelphia's campaign, including his enlisting of the support of President Hoover, Governor Fisher, President Alba B Johnson of Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, is calculated to achieve tangible results.

Consumers are not the only people who have allowed fear to curtail drastically their purchasing. Many letters come to this column complaining of inability to find desired goods in different kinds of retail stores. For example

Wallace A. Miller writes,

"Producers and retailers are scarce to manufacture stock up. The buying public is getting disgusted. I got footsore trampling around looking for an appropriate solid brass letter-hot for my front door. I was told everywhere, 'We are all out of them and afraid to stock them.' I bought other things in retail stores, and not finding them, I've gone to wholesalers and manufacturers. But they are all afraid to do something. It that's the American spirit of business then it deserves to get the beating it is taking. What the — is the matter?"

A woman writes

"When I complained to a shoestore manager about his not having either style or size, he advised me to buy something very conservatively; we're afraid to stock up. This store in the suburbs always has plentiful selections."

I know very few men who have succumbed entirely objectly to the prevailing mob psychology that they are cheese-paring like mad. Wife, bride, they relate hoy they have reduced the number of their servants, cut wages, economized on clothing expenditures, curtailed work on their estates, etc, etc.

This writer had implanted into him all through his boyhood and youth the value—the sacred value—of Spartan frugality and thrift. He still regards them as virtues when exercised rationally.

But when wealthy individuals and families, possessing more money than they will ever spend, and more than is likely to prove a blessing to their children, choose a time like to throw broad-winners out of work and to exercise extreme niggardliness, they become despicable

Corporations and other concerns strongly entrenched financially, which have acted similarly are equally condemnable—as well as shortsighted. Every corporation that sufficiently able to do so should, rather vote to distribute part of their unnecessarily large surplus in the form of extra dividends, and should also encourage employees interested in preparing for the prosperity which has always followed spasms of depression

BELL PAYROLL $56,000,000 IN MONTH

The Bell System on June 30 had $5,963,000,000 invested in plant and equipment against $3,671,099,689 at end of 1929. The whole telephone investment of the United States aggregates $4,430,000,000. In the Bell System the average daily expenditures for the second quarter of 1930 were $1,700,000 for construction and $2,450,000 for operating expenses, including taxes [illegible] ... monthly. The exact total in June was $6,679,000.

Of the workers 136,000 are male and 222,000 female. The System has increased its total of workers despite the current depression. Number of employes on June 30 was 358,000 as compared with 317,-150 at end of 1929.

At present about 110,000 of these company employes own stock in the A. T. & T. Co. Nearly one-fourth of the telephone stock while the total registered stockholders exceeds 570,000. Increase in A. T. & T. roster for the year to date was 70,000. Twenty years ago shareholders numbered 60,381.

No single A. T. & T. shareholder owns as much as 1 per cent of the total shares outstanding and nearly 500,000 of the stockholders own less than 100 shares apiece.

BROKERS' VIEW SEES CHEER

"Current discussion emanating from sources that should be reliable paints a picture of a bad general business situation steadily getting worse. This simply isn't true."

Tifft Brothers say we are still idling along the bottom of a trade depression. While they have no desire to minimize the harmful influence of prevailing pessimism which may retard recovery now, just as optimistic views may speed it, inflation in the forepart of 1929, eight tried and proven indicators say an improvement is due. Other than seasonal potency has been in progress for five consecutive weeks

The combination index of general activity stands at 87.5 per cent of theoretical normal against 107.7 per cent a year ago at the beginning of September and 105.4 per cent at this time in 1929.

The combination index of building, power and coal—have hung at around 80 per cent of normal for two months and a half, registering a new minimum at 79.6 per cent in the past week, while the items indicative of trade have risen from 86.4 per cent early in September to 94.1

NEW STEEL IS IN DEMAND

L. J. Harley Jr. president of the International Steel Corp., states that the demand for automobile and diecasting companies of Detroit, Newark and Beloit, Wis., as well as other centers, executive of the middle West who are users of steel products, has assured the company of orders sufficient to run the company's plant at Canton, O., at full capacity just as soon as the Bosshardt furnaces are ready for operation.

The Bosshardt Furnace Co., which is owned and operated by the International, has a process for making steel which will produce lighter ships, locomotives, passenger and freight cars, automobiles and airplanes and possessing even greater strength and durability than present steel processes.

Cheaper steel for structural purposes, the replacement of malleable iron and manufacture of lighter machinery of all kinds will be profluced, it is claimed, by the use of this Bosshardt process

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Obviously, the market lacks sufficient buying power to support advancing prices. This is an evidence primarily perhaps of a continued distrust on the part of investors, since investment buying is necessary to absorb the persistent offerings, rather than speculative demand, which soon disappears at the first sign of temporary reuse in prices.

Considering the immediate prospects for the market in the light of the supposed "support line" of Saturday's low levels, the market actually has yet to be tested. Yesterday's decline stopped just short of those lows and should these prices fail to hold it will be concrete evidence of the falsity of the widespread claims of extensive support in the market. However, the market had to contend with immediate profit-taking on fortunate speculators who recognized that Monday's advance was too abrupt to be lasting under prevailing conditions. Then, too, such overnight helpful items as the favorable trend in the Westinghouse report seemed too important to be wholly ignored.

Shattuck's Earnings Under Last Year

Earnings of Shattuck this year are expected to be slightly below the $2.61 a share reported for 1929. There has been reduction in the rates of the company as compared with last year, but this is attributed more to economies among customers than to any other factor. It is the popular belief that the number of customers served to date has been greater than last year, but the average check has been smaller.

Earnings Report Comparisons Made

	Since Addtions	Oct 1 Year Ago
Increased earnings	12	6
Decreased earnings	99	21
Unchanged or unreported	196	10
Increased dividends	21	2
Decreased dividends	25	5

Increased Call for Ice Noted

A circular on American Ice by a big New York and Boston investment bank house says

"When this issue was offered in 1928, some objections were raised by bond buyers on ground that the ice business was being hurt by electric refrigeration. As a matter of fact, American Ice Co. has found an increasing demand from hotels and restaurants which have found they cannot possibly do without real ice in spite of the fact that they have installed electric refrigerators."

Patience Virtue in This Market

In the kind of market we have had lately, the old saying "patience is a virtue" should be fully emphasized.

"Right" Financing Study Is Made

From January to December, inclusive, the then current value of securities listed on the Stock Exchange as result of "right" financing was $3,858,207,000. In June 1929, alone, it reached $1,146,613,000. Compared with those figures, negligible amounts were added as result of rights since first of this year. Last week rights of only one company, Celotex, were listed in

Thus digestion of new stocks and such last year one has been facilitated Millions of shares have been taken up by investors, with little new competition. Heavy new bond issues this year have appealed largely to a different class of investors

Passenger Losses of Rails Large

The heavy shrinkage in passenger revenues of class 1 roads the past decade is shown strikingly in tabulations prepared by Bureau of Railway Economies. The decade from 1920 to 1929 is tremendous growth in use of bus and auto.

In 1920 class 1 road revenues from passenger traffic were $1,-288,503,573, revenue passengers carried totalled 1,234,862,948 and revenue passenger miles operated were 46,438,867,967. In 1929 passenger receipts totalled $873,356,246, passengers carried 730,468,303 and revenue passenger miles operated 31,-074,674,000.

Passenger revenue in 1929 was off 33 per cent from 1920, revenue passenger miles operated declined 34 per cent.

STOCK LEADERS RECOVER, THEN MEET SELLING

New York, Oct. 22—After making full recovery from losses of 1 to 8 points, stocks met fresh selling in the last quarter-hour of trading in Wall Street today. The market closed weak and showed a net decline of more than a point. American Can yielded a 2-point rise. Sales approximated 1,900,000 shares.

LEADERS DISCOURAGED

Recurrence of these spasms of liquidation has grown decidedly discouraging to the brokerage community.

Although the day's business news was not favorable, many brokers felt that the condition of business has been fully discounted by the deflation in share values, and that further declines could scarcely be regarded as reflecting economic conditions, now well understood.

It is felt in some quarters that the persistent selling represents systematic liquidation of troubles some situations, and that once the process is completed the market may be expected to give a better account of itself.

NEEDLESS SACRIFICES

That such liquidation has progressed systematically with little or no demoralization is regarded as reassuring. Many brokers likewise feel that it may have caused considerable needless sacrificing of holdings by nervous investors. Certified back that fare as a little misleading owing to the strength of motor transports.

The weekly steel trade reviews, as expected, showed another decline in aggregate ingot output, from Aga placed output at 53 per cent of capacity, against 55 a week ago. Although it reported a substantial upturn at Chicago and slight gains at Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

"American Metal Market" said mills were running almost entirely on current orders, with slightly any backlogs. Consumers of pig iron will soon run out of orders, and the annual rail buying movement is later and lighter than usual.

Call money continued in abundant supply, officially at 2 per cent, with outside offerings at 1½.

SEAT FOR $250,000

Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Stock Exchange membership at $250,000, unchanged from the previous sale.

Weakness in the oil stocks was traceable to reports that Venezuela price cuts in gasoline and crude oil, the declines in the latter taking place at which time the famous bid for a million shares at 50 was made.

Absence of buying demand for stocks rather than the deluging of the market with selling orders accounted for the gradual settling down of values to a new low for the year.

Mid-day doldrums were followed by a rally of 1 to 2 points in the early afternoon. About half of the forenoon losses were regained, the utilities making most headway in this period.

The railroad, copper, electrical and other important groups, while sharing the early weakness of the general market, were generally ready to rally as soon as selling pressure was withdrawn. Commodity markets were steady and price changes narrow.

CAR LOADINGS SLIGHTLY OFF

Washington, Oct. 22 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended October 11 totaled 894,874 cars, the American Railway Association announced, a decrease of 17,618 cars below the preceding week and a reduction of 224,696 cars below the same week last year.

It also was a decrease of 233,837 cars compared with the corresponding week in 1928. Loadings during the year to date were:

Miscellaneous freight, 378,346 cars, 101,366 cars under the same week in 1929. Loadings of merchandise less than carload lot freight, 242,655 cars, decrease of 28,182 cars; coal, 176,685 cars, decrease of 31,575 cars; forest products, 39,229 cars, decrease of 25,844 cars; ore, 37,017 cars, reduction of 24,393 cars; coke, 9650 cars, decrease of 2200 cars.

Grain and grain products, 40,667 cars decrease of 6,150 cars under the corresponding week in 1929 and 16,144 cars below the same week in 1928. In the western districts alone, live stock loading amounted to 24,- 388 cars, a decrease of 4296 cars compared with the same week last year.

All districts reported reductions in the total loading of all commodities, compared not only with the same week in 1929, but also with the same week in 1928.

Eastern Equities Corp., formerly American Glue Co., has declared a second dividend out of surplus amounting to $25 a share, payable Oct. 24 to stock of record Oct. 21. The first dividend out of surplus was $20 a share which was paid Oct. 15.

PART TIME IDEA USED IN BOSTON BY BROKERS

BY FRANK H. MELOON

The part-time plan offered by President Hoover's unemployment relief committee to stimulate the number of workers on government construction jobs by introducing a three-day week is not new to State Street. One of the largest Boston investment houses has been using this "stagger system" for some time. Its employes work three weeks in four, thus eliminating a necessary reduction of 25 per cent in its staff. Interviews indicate the idea is satisfactory to those affected.

Automotive travel in the Bay State has increased every month of 1930 to date as compared with the like period for 1929. The rate of increase for this period reported months to date is better than 11 per cent. Proof of these statements is seen in the gasoline tax receipts reported to the Department of Taxation. Henry F. Long,

Commissioner Long's figures. Henry F. Long are regarded as an excellent barometer on the consumption of gasoline, which is translated into automotive mileage in nearly every instance of a sale. The receipts in Massachusetts for September amounted to $998,155, compared with $1,127,000 in August and 925,931 in September, 1929. Receipts for the nine months ended Sept. 30 were $8,080,614, compared with $7,457,280 for the corresponding period of the preceding year, a gain of $643,554, or 11.55 per cent.

In another state an oil man says brokers for failure to execute his orders as he may be next them. All persons who lost money in the market or whose families lost money are excluded from the jury in this case. If the practice becomes general in courts throughout the land, it may automatically do away with the jury system.

"Operations of Dominion Textile Co. are at 75 per cent capacity, against less than 50 per cent prior to recent tariff revisions which favored the company."

Bata, Czechoslovakia's largest shoe manufacturer who learned his trade in London, has reduced the day week of 45 hours for the workmen in his factories, according to trade information received by the Department of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Sam E. Woods in Prague. This new working schedule went into effect October 13, replacing the former six-day week of 48 hours, the report states. Bata claims that the five-day week is the result of improvements in the technical equipment and organization of his factories. He states that no change will be made in wages or in the price of his shoes.

So far as it is possible to determine this is the first instance where a large European industry has reduced the working time of laborers on its own initiative, according to the Czechoslovak information.

Eastman, Dillon & Co., announce Laurence. E. Leonard has become associated with their investment department and will represent the firm in Boston, headquarters in the Shawmut Bank Building at 82 Devonshire st. Mr. Leonard was formerly sales manager for Lee Higginson Brothers, and is a trustee of the Lynn Five Cents Savings Bank. They are members of the New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh Stock Exchanges and of the New York Curb Exchange. Soule and Co. were formerly Boston correspondents.

Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, in his unfortunate controversy with the Soviet about selling wheat, pointed to the 42-cents-a-bushel tariff wall. What could prosperous manufacturers not accomplish if they had a protective duty like this on a commodity 40 per cent of retail value against foreign imports? Certainly no further tariff boosts are needed to stabilize shoe prices at levels to keep all the good factories filled with workers.

The Bay State might feel grateful for the secretary's work if it understood it more fully. Thousands of automobiles are held up at Palmer, for example, and asked in effect, if they have any apparent beetles in their cars, simply wonder what it is all about. It used to be the custom to demand Kilroy was over until the Governor of Maine put a stop to wasting public funds attempting to find out a pest that had already entered.

Cost of a Telephone in Japan Is Cut to $430 a Year

Washington, Oct 22—The high cost of having a telephone in Japan has shown a decided decline since the recent improvement in that country of the formation of a semi-official telephone company, according to Japanese trade information received by the Department of Commerce.

Prices for telephones which stood recently at 1339 yen ($650) have dropped to 860 yen ($420). There are quotations from the open market in which prospective users bid for the privilege of having a telephone.

Alice Boulden and Genevieve Tobin Will Sing Over WNAC

Two stage stars, one a musical comedy leading lady and the other an actress with a leaning for the drama, will grace the CBS microphone tonight on two different programs. They are Alice Boulden (who will appear on the Rhythm Ramblers' program broadcast over WNAC at 7:15 and Genevieve Tobin, heard on the California Melodies program on WNAC at 11:30.

Miss Boulden started her career at the request of her uncle, Wilton Lackaye, and her father, Howard Boulden, when she was but eight years old. Just before she beckoned her she appeared at Texas Guinan's rendezvous along with Irene Delroy, Pearl Eaton, Ruby Keeler and Claire Luce. She also sang with Sophie Tucker. Her next step was musical comedy, where she appeared in "Gay Paree," "Held Everything" and "Heads Up." She is now leading lady for the Jo Cook show, "Fine and Dandy." It is from this show that she will choose song numbers tonight.

Genevieve Tobin is a Broadway celebrity whose versatility has won her a high place in the hall of theatrical fame. In musical comedy and dramatic parts Miss Tobin has starred. Two of the most outstanding productions in past years, "Broadway" and "The Jazz Singer," Mary Dugan" had Miss Tobin in the leading roles. Likewise she has appeared frequently in musical comedy, her latest success being "Fifty Million Frenchmen." She will star in a number tonight from this production. In addition she will be interviewed by Will Wing, writer of Hollywood gossip.

Concerning RADIO

By BILL WHIPPLE.

The radio public today, and that, of course, means about everybody who is old enough to enjoy broadcast entertainment, has become pretty conversant with various radio phrases used by the announcers in introducing their programs: "This is coming to you through station, etc." "This program is sponsored by, etc." "You are about to be entertained by, etc." and a dozen other such introductions.

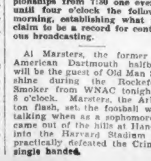
There is one phrase, however, as yet hardly heard at all, but which will come to be used by numerable programs, and it is the two words, "electrical transcription." Just don't bother nobody tell you differently, for that method of broadcasting entertainment has already arrived in our midst with a bang.

In mentioning electrical transcription to some people they will give sort of a nasty laugh, and say: Well, anybody with a phonograph is going to get me to listen to old phonograph records in place of the real thing." But they are not phonograph records in the first place, and whether or no, we are going to hear a lot of broadcasts produced through such mechanical contrivance, or miss some of the greatest and most interesting programs to be heard on the air.

Did you ever hear of A. J. Kendrick? Probably not as yet, but you are going to before long, for Kendrick is president of Sound Studios, located on 57th st., New York. Sound Studios is, as we understand it a subsidiary of the World Broadcasting System, which name unless we are greatly mistaken, is due to be very prominently known in radio matters as is the great NBC.

As proof that Sound Studio is well under way towards a prominent place in the radio sun, let us remind you that the very popular and highly entertaining Chevrolet Chronicles are produced in Sound Studios, that they are electrical transcription and are going over big. And the program which they already have under way are marvels in broadcast entertainment.

Those who tune in on the amateur boxing bouts of the St. Joseph Total Abstinence Society held every Saturday evening in the Mechanics Building, Boston, under the direction of Father Bill Cuddy and broadcast through station WLEX at Lexington, will be interested to learn that Deputy Superintendent Frank Gillis, boxing bout announcers for that station, will claim to broadcast more bouts in a season than the distinguished Mr. McNamee would naturally do in a lifetime.



They reason it out that the amateur bouts are only three rounds and figuring on the number of quick knock-outs the average number of bouts per hour is ten. On one occasion several years ago Harrison, Carl Wheeler and one professional bout, the international amateur boxing championships from 7:30 one evening to 2:30 the following Sunday morning, establishing what they claim to be a record for continuous broadcasting.

Al Marsters, the former all-American Dartmouth halfback, will be the guest of Old Man Sunshine during the Rockefeller Smoker from WNAC tonight at 8 o'clock. Marsters, the Arlington flash, set the football world talking when as a sophomore he came out of the hills at Hanover into the Harvard Stadium and practically defeated the Crimson single handed.

The Weather

For Boston and vicinity—Fair and slightly warmer tonight; Thursday fairly cloudy and warmer; light to moderate westerly winds.

For Southern New England—Partly cloudy but not quite so cool tonight; Thursday increasing cloudiness and warmer probably followed by rain at night; moderate west winds.

For Eastern New York—Partly cloudy, not quite so cool tonight; Thursday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably followed by rain at night moderate west winds.

OCEAN FORECAST

Steamers expecting to sail for European ports will have fresh northwest winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

The proposed amendment of the Constitution provides that the provisions of article XXI of the Articles of Amendment of the Constitution and its substitution by article XXII, the proposed amendment embodies in substance the provisions of said articles and additions to said Articles XXI and XXII.

1. In general retains the present system of twelve thousand inhabitants or more may be divided into two representative districts. No precincts however, in such districts may be divided. Towns with less than the normal number required for one representative but with a number exceeding such number by a majority thereof under Amendment XXI no town may be divided and the number of representatives in a precinct is required.

The Legislature may by majority representative districts and the apportionment of representatives among the districts, but may be made by "The county commissioners or by such board of special commissioners as may be provided by law."

Under Article XXI the Legislature is not made to the division and apportionment made by the mayor and aldermen of the city of Boston, but by special commissioners of said city appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, or by such commissioners in each county other than Suffolk, which commissioners, or commissioners in each county, to be elected by the people of the county at the next election, as may for that purpose be provided by law. They are to make such division and assignment by the Legislature at the session next succeeding that at which the census returns of the United States for the year 1930 and thereafter at the session next succeeding the decennial census. Under Article XXI it is now made the duty of the mayor and aldermen of the city of Boston, and of the commissioners of said city appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, to make such division and assignment of the number of representatives to which said city may be entitled, as may be required by the Legislature at the session next succeeding the decennial census. Under the proposed Articles, each special enumeration shall be the basis for determining the districts, apportionment of senatorial and councillor, for the ten-year period beginning in the year next following said special enumeration and the present districts shall remain in force and effect until January, 1939. Under the existing Articles the Legislature is required to make a new division of the state into districts for the next succeeding decennial period after each special census. Under the proposed Articles effect those elected in 1934 to hold office beginning in January, 1935, instead of affecting those elected in 1935 to hold office beginning in January, 1937. Under existing amendments representation of the several counties in January next after the second year after each ten-year census is based upon the number of inhabitants it would begin in January of the fourth year thereafter. The number of senators (40), senators (240), and councillors (8) remains unchanged.

The whole number of inhabitants of the commonwealth according to the last preceding decennial or special census is the number questioned by judicial proceedings. The existing amendments contain no provision that itself limits or authorizes the Legislature to make changes.

Votes in favor of the proposed amendment which received in a joint session of the two branches of the Legislature held May 17, 1928, 182 votes in the affirmative and 48 in the negative, and at a joint session of the two houses held May 7, 1930, 174 votes in the affirmative and 85 in the negative, is required.

"A Krysis Is Onto Us"

Some Burdens That Hold Business Down

If you are asking friends "What do you think about business conditions?" or "When do you think business will pick up?" please turn your rolling eye toward the cartoon on the right by Mr. McCay.

Your answer is in that picture.

Business is looking up, as Mr. Solly Wertheim observed, "Flat on its back, looking up."

You may be flat on your back for a moment, then get up and go on again.

But if you have hundreds of millions for War, hundreds of millions for the Navy sitting on your legs, dear old Prohibition, with Crime, like Sinbad the Sailor around his neck, sitting on your stomach, and the other impedimenta shown here, HOW CAN YOU GET UP?

Artemus Ward said it long ago and many now are repeating it in less eccentric English.

What IS the crisis, what is the answer to the question that everybody asks, from the White House to the peanut stand, "What's the matter with business?"

It is easy to mention one thing that is the matter at least, and that is GOVERNMENT SPENDING.

It can't be avoided, possibly, and much of the spending is based on simple justice.

But the fact remains that when the Government deals out money, hundreds of millions HERE, hundreds of millions THERE, and when Bootlegging and Crime take from the people more than the total income of government, you must expect "reasonable setbacks."

It is predicted that the Veterans' Bureau will spend in the coming year nine hundred millions of dollars.

That's a good deal of money, although it is the business of the nation to live up to its obligations, when it conscripts men and forces them to be shot or gassed.

And the nine hundred million dollars does not include regular pensions.

The bill appropriating money for soldiers was based on popular opinion and good organization. All the moneys that are being spent, excepting perhaps millions squandered on out-of-date battleships that never would be used in war, is probably spent necessarily.

But business depends on BUSINESS MEN.

When they see higher taxes ahead, and gigantically increasing government expenses, they do not feel like "expanding."

They say to themselves, "If I lose money I shall have the pleasure of absorbing the loss. If I make money the Government will take away twenty-five per cent of it, and perhaps more, I shall wait awhile."

To appoint commissions is useful or at least harmless. But no commission can make a man build a new factory, or restore an old factory to its 1929 output.

What is needed is some commission that will make business men believe that if they give work to others, and take a reasonable risk, the Government in case they prosper, will not come along picking like a crow at a dead horse and take twenty-five per cent of what they have made.

That is one little fact about the "Krysis that is onto us."

Another fact is that Bootleg-Prohibition and Prohibition-Crime take billions a year from the public—and that is the heaviest weight of all on the chest of business.

HOW CAN HE GET UP?

"Fifteen men on a dead man's chest" made little difference to the dead man. He was dead, and didn't know about it.

But these individuals, sitting on the chest of live business, and holding down arms and legs, make a considerable difference.

What's the use of asking Mr. Business: "When are you going to pick up," when you hold him down, so that he can't stand?

Give him a chance.

New England Exports

Ask Your Banker About His Part

The United States Department of Commerce has completed a survey of the importance of New England's foreign trade and out of it may be gleaned three conditions of major substance to the economic life of the public.

New England's export business amounts to probably $250,000,000 annually, and her import trade is in excess of that amount. Thus, her foreign business is probably equivalent to the difference between prosperity and the lack of prosperity.

About forty per cent of her foreign trade is to Canada at the north and to the Latin-American countries at the south.

Not more than twenty-five per cent of the business firms engaged in this foreign trade maintain sales representatives to expand their market or to develop this character of business.

Here we have an interesting anomaly. Our foreign trade is vitally important and a large amount of it follows the trade lines off our coast to the north and the south, yet our manufacturers confess a paucity of sales agents abroad to expand it and they have demonstrated a singularly regrettable lack of interest in the development of an American merchant marine for even our own coastal routes.

We offer to them again the same suggestions we have made so frequently in the past. Prevail upon your bankers, with whom you must have influence because you deposit so heavily with them, to invest some of their funds patriotically in a merchant marine which will be built and headquartered in New England and which will, accordingly, have the primary interest of New England at heart. Establish your own co-operative shipping agency in Boston in order that you may derive the advantage of the lowest possible water transportation rates until a New England merchant marine is completed and traverses the seven seas in all the splendor of its old New England glory.

The New England merchant marine was once the finest and most alert salesman of New England products. It can be made so again.

Some Thoughts on Beer

Not Illegal to Think About It

An eminent toxicologist says a man couldn't hold enough 2 per cent beer to get himself drunk. The American Federation of Labor, meeting here in Boston, says 2.75 would be enough. Here is a hiatus of 1.25 in which a fellow could load up like a pump and get about as much thrill. Science and labor indulge themselves in these mental abstractions, but the average man knows as much as the two of them put together. He knows that he doesn't get his glass of beer.

Listen, World!—All Alike

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Result of "Don't Ask Questions"

REMEMBER when you were six and always asking questions? What a pest you were to your exasperated elders! But how could you face your amazing new world without asking questions about its wonders and mysteries? And what had happened to them that they were no longer curious and excited?

Elsie Robinson

And then again when you were sixteen—that maddening, muddled age of sixteen. Asking more questions than ever, but this time with a new slant. Doubting, debating, defying the status quo. You certainly made a nuisance of yourself, with your half-baked notions. But how much more colorful your life might have been if anyone had understood those doubts and encouraged that defiance. But, of course, no one did. Instead, they frowned on you—acted as if doubting and debating were a crime. So you learned to conform and accept things as they are. And now you're just like everyone else. In fact, you, too, have probably come to regard people who aren't like everyone else as "nuts."

"Thinking like everyone else"—that's the gravest charge the older nations bring against Americans. They say we're stereotyped, a bunch of Babbits—we who were once the outstanding individualists of the world. Stand-patters, afraid to be different, resentful of criticism, suspicious of experiment, how do we get that way? Professor Robert E. Rogers, instructor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, believes we get that way because we're educated by women teachers.

"Our boys and girls," says he, "have not been taught to think . . . they have been taught not to criticize or analyze. Whose fault is it? I will hazard an unpopular guess. For half a century now the largest part of our young people have been trained exclusively by women teachers.

"The faults I have been speaking of are the faults of women teachers; preoccupation with method, interest in detail, insistence on discipline . . . an inclination to insist on abstract beliefs to be accepted docilely, rather than the free give-and-take of criticism."

In other words, the old "don't ask questions" attitude.

The average woman, particularly the woman teacher, detests criticism and debate. It messes things up, too. Imperils her dignity and exposes her ignorance. She's afraid of ridicule and she detests disorder. Debates and experiments get everything upset. She wants a life that's in order. A place for everything and everything in its place. And everything CAN be put in its place so quickly and so pleasantly if we'll all agree not to question and doubt and just accept things as they're given us.

"Don't ask questions!"—that's the unwritten law in every school room. And even if Teacher personally doesn't believe in it, the School Board does. Try and promote a little frank discussion of American history and see how long your teacher's certificate lasts. Or criticize our existing institutions and watch your stock go down with the local Rotary Club.

And so America, once the haven of rebels, the promoter of "Freedom of Speech," has become the great Don't-Ask-Questions Land.

Monsters of the Air

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON, Ph. D.

THOSE MIGHTY air navies, wheeling in the central blue, prophesied a century or more ago, are virtually in being today. Already air monsters—whether a DO-X airplane or an R-100—are circling about our heads. They herald even more powerful, more bulky and speedier aircraft for the near future.

Vast outlays of capital are being projected for the establishment of commercial air lines of travel. The promise for the future is roseate, as the range of experimentation is virtually unlimited.

Airplanes, airships, sea beacons, land beacons, air fields, floating aerodromes, new fuel, non-inflammable gases, hangars, mooring towers—all of these and many other features of the air transport of the future are being intensively studied, experimented with, invented, constructed. It seems clear that the future problems to be solved, the major difficulties to be surmounted, are less of a scientific than of an economic nature.

The major problem is to demonstrate to capitalists the safety of air travel and transport, and in consequence to enlist the indispensable support of capital on an almost unlimited scale.

Consider, for example, the huge flying-boat, DO-X, which has already made successful flights, carrying as many as 169 persons! This mighty machine is named after the inventor, Dr. Dornier, one of the profound scientific experimenters in the field of aircraft invention. The wing-span of the DO-X is 164 feet, the length of the hull and fuselage 147 feet. The approximate coast of this great flying-boat is $750,000. The calculated maximum speed is 156 miles per hour.

On a trial cruise over Lake Constance, the DO-X made 110 miles in less than an hour.

This is a powerful aircraft, with the amazing load capacity of some 50 tons. It is propelled by 12 Jupiter-Siemens engines, with a combined horse-power of 6300. The strength and stability of the structure is indicated by the thickness of the wings—over a foot! The tanks will hold 4000 gallons of gasoline, and 3000 pounds of oil.

When the DO-X makes her trans-Atlantic trip, it is unlikely that she will carry more than 50 passengers in addition to a crew of 12.

The new dirigibles which are now planned will be on an equally colossal scale. They will be designed to have a cruising radius of 10,000 miles as against 6000 for the Graf Zeppelin. They will use helium, a non-inflammable gas, available in this country in unlimited quantities, in order to be free from fire hazard.

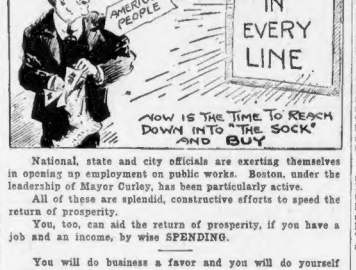
Aiding Prosperity Return

By Spending Wisely, You, Too, Can Help



THINGS WILL NEVER BE CHEAPER THAN NOW
AMERICAN PEOPLE
BARGAINS IN EVERY LINE
NOW IS THE TIME TO REACH DOWN INTO "THE SOCK" AND BUY

National, state and city officials are exerting themselves in opening up employment on public works. Boston, under the leadership of Mayor Curley, has been particularly active.

All of these are splendid, constructive efforts to speed the return of prosperity.

You, too, can aid the return of prosperity, if you have a job and an income, by wise SPENDING.

You will do business a favor and you will do yourself a favor.

There are times and seasons for saving, and times and seasons for spending.

The time for saving is when prices are high, when your dollar will buy comparatively little.

The time for spending is when prices are low, when your dollar buys much.

Just now prices are low indeed—probably as low as they will ever be. Your dollar will buy nearly twice what it would a year ago.

At such times, hoarding is foolish. All great fortunes were founded in times of depression. You may not expect to found a great fortune, but you can buy with profit the necessities and even some of the luxuries that you want now or later.

You are not advised to waste your money. But under certain conditions, failure to spend can be truly called WASTE.

Those conditions prevail now. If you have saved money in previous years, when there was a lot of it lying around loose, you should CASH IN on your prudence.

Further, your buying now will in a large measure make secure the continuance of your income, or job. Continued hoarding by those who have work is certain to cause further shutdowns of industry and added unemployment. Careful but steady buying will keep the factories running and will soon reopen factories now closed.

New England's saving deposits have grown by many millions in the past few months, during the worst part of the business depression. There is a vast reservoir of money available for those who are willing to take advantage of present bargains.

The Boston Evening American, in originating the "Buy Now" movement several weeks ago, urged that the spending of $1, $2, or more each week by those having jobs would be money well spent and would in itself be a tremendous influence in restoring good times.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—Central Park soothes a transplanted New Yorker's nostalgia for open spaces. A makeshift, of course, for true rural beauty and solitude, but every hour it is dotted with harassed city dwellers seeking escape from the incoherent clatter all about them.

This breathing spot rib-near the pulsing heart of the town is the only place remaining for leisurely strolls and studied contemplation. Five minutes from the stirring jangle of Columbus Circle one comes upon a milk-and-liver-colored cow chewing a cud of bovine contentment.

A short space further on and a shepherd with a magnificent snowy collie stands under a tree watching sheep grazing and flicking their tails. Ladies with tiny sun parasols jog by in horse drawn landaus with a patrician pomp. Old men under spreading umbrellas swing croquet mallets on the greensward.

Along the Mall children of the rich ride on rented Shetlands or in goat-pulled carts. Squirrels scamper through the foliage, and tucked here and there are martin boxes and whitewashed dove cotes. Elderly ladies in silk hats ride side saddle alongside youngsters astride in bloomers.

On cool, murmurous paths slitting the beautiful Shakespearean flower gardens are benches for hand holders, and one sequestered spot, where discreet policemen walk by scanning the clouds, is known as "Lover's Lane." In the moonlight, gleaming white, is the Egyptian obelisk—fashioned before the birth of the Saviour.

Painters perch on grassy knolls and in the crags of rocky cliffs to imprison the beauty of skylines on canvas. And frequently stretched out on the grass is a poet with long hair and a Byronic collar, nibbling at the end of a lead pencil. Dreaming a deathless elegy.

After midnight, when Broadway's electric swagger grows dim, Central Park is breathless with a hushed rapture. There is a tender gravity about the trees, fugitive paths and the pale lamps strung like so many beads about shadowy lawns. At such times many feel very near the unsolvable mystery.

Charlie Towne used to tell of a movie director strolling in Central Park with a chorus lady at the entrancing hour when the moon had hung a spinning in the sky and the twirling stars shimmered in lacey loveliness. "Say baby," he chirped, "you should see Hollywood, where all this junk comes from."

It was Col. Roosevelt, while Governor, who saved Central Park for posterity and from the real estate marauders. It escaped sub-division and a real estate boom by a eyelash. Yet frequent strollings in Central Park have not revealed a monument to T. R. in the area. A heroic one should be flung up by a grateful citizenry. If there is one—rub this out.

A most uncomfortable moment was experienced in Central Park while taking it around the reservoir gravel path with a dog ten years ago. Out of the path of motor traffic and pedestrians I unleashed the dog and tossed a stick for him to retrieve. A misdirected throw landed the stick in a tree where it began to rattle through dry, stark branches over the bridle path. A lady on a skittish horse galloped by. The horse bolted while I stood petrified as she teetered perilously for a mad quarter mile. A mounted policeman brought the horse, foaming, to a stop. The gracious lady was considerate enough to wheel about, return and relieve my frenzy of sheer terror. Should she read this, I'd like her to know I still remember her with grateful reverence, although too horrified to express myself at the time.

Too, there was a memorable insult in Central Park. Listening to a band concert, a gentleman on the same bench with me originating the Lillian Russell himself, the mut, observed:

I wonder if others keeping house have also collected innumerable clocks that will not run. It was a hope to add to the pleasure and drone of domesticity with the tick of one of those gaunt hall clocks. But no matter what I do to start it, in a few hours it somehow gets back to 18 minutes of six and sticks.

It is such an idiotic clock it wouldn't surprise me any day if it suddenly flew open and Ed Wynn stuck his fool head out.
